Horror drive for city teens

Philip

Dena

By PAUL MINVIELLE
Times Staff

Hitch-hiking turned to horror for two Victoria teenagers held captive last week by a knife-wielding convict from Kingston Penitentiary.

Philip White, 17, is in satisfactory condition at Baker Memorial Hospital in Quesnel recovering from stab wounds.

Dena Vinqvist, also 17, was en route from Edson to her parents' condominium at 1525 Hillside today, after being rescued by the RCMP in an episode worthy of the wildest movie thriller.

For Einar and Elaine Vinqvist, the sign they placed on their daughter's bedroom door — "Welcome home, Dena" — was only a hint of the relief they felt at the news that she was safe and on her way back to Victoria.

Even this morning, the Vinqvists had had to rely on newspaper accounts of what had happened.

It started when the two teenagers hitched a ride in Sudbury, Ont.

"We were getting along fine until Winnipeg," Vinqvist said Monday in Edson, the western Alberta community where she was rescued.

"I wanted to stop in Winnipeg to get a present for my girl friend. He (the driver) said he couldn't take us there. He pulled out a knife and made Philip sit down under the dash and stabbed him."

White lay in the back seat of the car for three or four days, she said.

"He was suffering a lot."

The stab wound punctured White's lung.

Miss Vinqvist said they arrived in Quesnel Saturday where the driver tied White up about 270 metres behind a rest stop.

RCMP said White managed to free himself shortly afterwards and get himself to a Quesnel hospital. He had an operation Monday and is recovering.

Meanwhile, the driver took Miss Vinqvist with him back to Alberta.

At a gas station near Hinton, Alta, just east of Jasper National Park, Miss Vinqvist managed to talk her way into the washroom where she left a note using paper towels and a pen she had in her purse.

About 15 minutes later, another person using the washroom found the note.

Staff-Sgt. Barry Golberg of the Edson RCMP said within a half-hour of getting word of the girl's call for help, police had the car stopped at a roadblock.

He said the driver surrendered without resistance.

RCMP said Denis McCullough, 38, who failed to return from day parole from a Kingston, Ont., prison Aug. 5, was transferred to Edmonton today.

July jobless dips to 7.2%

OTTAWA (CP) — The number of Canadians who failed to find jobs in July dropped for the fourth consecutive month to 793,000.

The June figure was 798,000.

The national unemployment rate, adjusted to take into account normal seasonal variations, was 7.2 per cent last month compared with 7.5 per cent in June.

British Columbia's rate was 7.3 per cent compared with 7.7 per cent last month.

Monthly figures released by the government today show the seasonally-adjusted jobless rate, the normal measure of the seriousness of unemployment, at its lowest level in almost three years. The last time the unemployment rate fell below 7.5 per cent of the labor force was in September, 1976.

Young people continued to shoulder the largest burden of unemployment last month. The rate for men in the 15-to-24 age bracket was 11.9 per cent. For women in the same age group, the rate was 12.7 per cent.

The numbers with jobs increased last month to 10.8 million from 10.6 million in June.

Persistent regional problems continue to plague the country. Newfoundland, traditionally the hardest-hit by unemployment, had a July rate of 14.4 per cent. The province with the lowest rate was Alberta with 3.6 per cent.

Monthly figures from Statistics Canada showed 63 per cent of the population is either working or seeking work. This is exactly the same as one year earlier.

The federal agency said there were 131,000 students who unsuccessfully sought summer jobs in July. This put the unemployment level among students planning to return to school in the fall at 11.9 per cent. The corresponding 1978 monthly figure was 15.2 per cent.

Although Canada's unemployment situation has been steadily improving this year, its rate last month of 7.2 per cent remained well above the 5.7-per-cent July unemployment rate reported in the United States.

Canada and the United States both have considerably larger unemployment rates than most nations of Western Europe which have been reporting about five-per-cent unemployment this year.

Japan has reported about two-per-cent unemployment.

Rich to get richer

OTTAWA (CP) — A Statistics Canada survey on home ownership supports critics' claims that the government proposal for mortgage interest deductibility will primarily benefit the well to do.

The average annual income of homeowners with mortgages is more than $22,000, the federal statistics-gathering agency says in a special survey based on information gathered in the spring of 1977.

More than two years later, the average annual income of Canadians is $14,820.

Statistics Canada had originally planned to release the mortgage and home-ownership information in a broader publication next year.

A key Conservative campaign promise was to make mortgage interest and property taxes deductible from taxable income. The proposal, to be phased in over four years, would allow deductions of up to $5,000 in mortgage interest payments and $1,000 in property tax.

The Statistics Canada survey, based on information from 13,000 families and unattached individuals, showed that only 24.9 per cent of homeowners earned $10,000 or less a year and 40.8 per cent earned less than $15,000 annually.

Further, the study shows that only 54 per cent of homeowners have mortgage debts which would make them eligible for the Conservative tax break proposal.

Unification review to start by month-end

WINNIPEG (CP) — Defence Minister Allan McKinnon said Monday a commission examining the integration of Canada's armed forces should be ready to start work by Sept. 1.

McKinnon said the Progressive Conservative government is "not at all" committed to the integration policy introduced 11 years ago by the previous Liberal government.

McKinnon said the government expects to announce names of the five commissioners soon. Four persons have agreed to serve and talks are continuing with a fifth person.

"They're being charged with determining what the merits and demerits of unification are, and recommending what I should do about it," McKinnon told a press conference.

He said the commissioners might recommend that Canada revert to three separate armed forces, stay with the present system or "have something half-way between."

Crash kills 2, severs power

Two Victoria youths were killed early today when their car hit a rock and crashed into a power pole at the intersection of West Saanich and Old West Roads in Central Saanich.

Pronounced dead at the scene were David James Shillington, 16, of 5226 Rambler Road, and Dale William Guenther, 14, of 5185 Rambler Road.

The accident knocked out power in the area and the Saanich fire department had to loan floodlights to police investigating the crash.

The fatal crash occurred about 4 a.m.

Area resident Mrs. Frank Smith, of 6489 Old West Road, said she had arisen early and heard the crash.

B.C. Hydro restored power in the area after about half an hour.

Wild seas foul race

At last report the Vancouver racing yacht Pachina — among 330 yachts battered by ferocious seas that killed at least four yachtsmen off southwest England today — was holding its own.

Skippered by Swiftsure veteran John Newton, the Pachina out of the Royal Vancouver Yacht Club is one of three Canadian yachts in Admiral's Cup competition. The others are Canada's Cup champion Evergreen from Hamilton and Magistri from Toronto.

At press time no Canadians were listed among the dead or missing.

New hospital rate 'insult, disaster'

The president of the B.C. Association of Private Care Hospitals said today its members will not accept new rates for private care facilities providing long-term care.

The new rates were announced Monday by the health ministry.

Association president Pat Shields said the rates provide only a 1.4 per cent increase for extended care patients.

"That rate is an insult to the operators of private hospitals in this province especially when the government is paying $45 to $56 a day in government-operated hospitals."

The new rates have gone up 50 cents to $35 a day for extended care.

The association will meet Wednesday to discuss its options.

Those options, outlined by Shields, include closing down, opting out of the program or refusing to accept any more admissions at this time.

Trevor Shuckburgh, president of the B.C. Association of Private Care Facilities, said the new rates are a "disaster" but nothing further can be done by his organization at this time.

The ministry said in a news release the 8,600 B.C. residents in the institutions will not have to pay for the $4 million increase. Individual rates will continue at $6.50 a day towards cost of care.

A government spokesman said payments by the province to the facilities have been increased by about nine per cent over-all.

But Shields said private hospitals have experienced a 44 per cent increase in costs since the program was started in Jauary 1978.

Near-mist near miss

Yup, you were right.

That was a slight sprinkle of rain early today.

The sprinkle, (it was so light it was almost a mist) snapped a 31-day spell of dry, hot weather.

Today's dusting in some parts of Greater Victoria wasn't enough, however, to be registered.

The last time rain was officially recorded was July 13.

Vultures everywhere; toll soars

NEW DELHI (UPI) — Government officials toured the corpse-strewn streets of the western city of Morji Tuesday and predicted the death toll would exceed 10,000 from floodwaters that engulfed the area when a dam broke three days ago.

"Vultures are everywhere," said a man looking for relatives in Morvi, where bodies were reported still littering streets, houses, roofs and temples. "Wherever I went, I saw badly bloated bodies lying scattered in the streets."

Rescue officials said they had recovered 1,000 bodies from the muddy ruins of Morvi, 480 kilometres north of Bombay.

"The death toll will be between 10,000 and 15,000," Vice President Vallabhai Patel of Gujrat state's governing Janata Party told reporters in Morvi. Other estimates ran as high as 25,000 dead.

Officials first reported 1,000 dead after the Monchi Dam broke Saturday, then admitted today that "1,000 bodies have been dug out."

The flood waters largely had subsided, leaving corpses in the thick mud covering the city, which had a population of 60,000.

District Magistrate A.R. Banerji, more conservative than the politicians, estimated that "600 to 700 more bodies might be found," and added, "But it's difficult to say how many persons are missing."

Indian reporters said three villages with an estimated population of 50,000 were wiped out by the water and "nobody knows the fate of the residents."

An Indian air force helicopter pilot who flew over the area said all the straw-roofed mud houses of a village known to have 5,000 people were washed away and there was no trace of the inhabitants.

Health authorities feared an epidemic if the decomposing bodies were not quickly buried. Medical teams were checking for cholera symptoms among the thousands made homeless by the flood.

"We are planning to inoculate 1,000 people per hour," one doctor said.

Ottawa deficit $11.7B

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government spent $11.72 billion more than it received in revenue last year, preliminary statistics show.

The finance department said Monday expenditures for the 1978-79 year ended March 31 reached $46.93 billion and total revenue was $35.21 billion.

Major revenue sources were $14 billion in personal income tax, up from $13.4 billion in the previous year, and corporation tax of $6.7 billion, up from $5.8 billion.

The government collected $4.7 billion in sales tax last year, up from $4.4 billion the previous fiscal year. Customs import duties accounted for $2.7 billion of the 1978-79 revenue, up from $2.3 billion the previous year.

Total tax revenue was $30.65 billion in the 1978-79 fiscal year, up from $28.95 billion in 1977-78.

Non-tax revenue was $4.65 billion, up from $3.9 billion the previous year. The 1978-79 figure included a $925 million return on investments by the Bank of Canada and a $753 million return on investments by the Central Mortgage and Housing Corp.

Postal revenue was $903 million, up from $773 million.

Among the expenditures was payment of $7 billion towards the public debt, which was $51.3 billion in 1978-79.

Health and welfare payments amounted to $13 billion last year, up from $11.6 billion.

National defence expenditures rose to $4.1 billion in 1978-79, up from $3.8 billion.

More clashes in Tehran

TEHRAN (AP) — Leftist guerrillas and right-wing Moslem demonstrators today clashed for the third consecutive day in a widening split between factions that supported the February revolution led by Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini.

The fighting was between about 350 members of the People's Fedayeen guerrilla organization and a band of Moslems described as anti-Fedayeen, the official Pars news agency reported. The Fedayeen had gathered in downtown Tehran and marched past Tehran University to protest the takeover Monday of their headquarters by club-wielding government-backed revolutionary guards.

Pars said revolutionary troops fired their guns into the air to disperse the combatants, who met in front of the Fedayeen headquarters. There was no report of injuries.

The split in the Iranian revolutionary forces between leftist opponents of Khomeini's conservative sectarianism and militant supporters of the Shiite Moslem patriarch appeared to be widening.

More than 300 guerrillas of another leftist group, the Mojahedeen, began a sitdown under armed protection in front of their headquarters to prevent attacks by groups of Moslem zealots marching by.

Other groups of Moslem extremists armed with knives and clubs were reported circulating through the city harassing pedestrians. One man said he saw a group attack a bearded young man carrying books who they said "looked like a communist."

The nine-storey Mojahedeen headquarters in central Tehran was heavily guarded by armed men behind sandbags on the roof and at the entrance. Two truckloads of armed revolutionary guardsmen were stationed nearby as a precaution.

The religious extremists, in several groups of about 50 each, made repeated marches past the building shouting "Communism is destroyed! Islam is victorious!"

Although the Mojahedeen is a Moslem group, it is Marxist-oriented and seeks to establish a workers' state and a classless society in Iran. Its goals are anathema to Khomeini and the conservative clerics who have dominated the Iranian revolution.

Meanwhile, press reports said three more persons were executed by Islamic revolutionary firing squads, bringing the total number of reported executions to 402 since the February revolution. Those reported killed included a former policeman in the central town of Shahrkurd and two men charged with committing adultery with a married woman.

In Paris, former Prime Minister Shahpour Bakhtiar predicted in an interview with Agence France-Presse that Khomeini's government will not last long and "I will deliver the coup de grace."

Three junior shakers

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI) — Three earthquakes, none as severe as last week's big jolt that swayed high-rise buildings, rumbled through the San Francisco Bay area Monday but caused no damage or injuries.

The University of California seismographic station said the first temblor occurred at 12:03 p.m. and measured 2.3 on the open-ended Richter scale, the second at 12:18 p.m. was 3.3 and the third at 1:33 p.m. was recorded as 2.1.

The quakes prompted only a few telephone calls to police agencies from worried citizens.

Roy Miller, a research associate at the station, said the first and last shakers were classified as small while the second was rated as mild.

The epicentre of the three tremors was 6 to 7 miles east of Berkeley.

Miller said there was "no relationship" to last week's 5.9 shaker, which was on the Calaveras Fault 60 miles south of San Francisco.

"There are several little faults in the area, and we aren't quite sure exactly which fault this one was on," Miller said. "It is not considered serious."

Coffee enema, deaths linked

SEATTLE (UPI) — Two people who gave themselves coffee enemas as part of a home treatment program died from complications linked to the technique, health officials say.

In announcing the deaths Monday, Dr. Lawrence Bergner, director of the Seattle-King County Health Department, warned that the use of coffee enemas as an "alternative" therapy for cancer and other diseases was "of dubious value."

Those who try it, he said, risk upsetting their body's chemical balance and may delay "sound medical care until it is too late."

Dr. Donald Reay, county medical examiner, said more and more people may be experimenting with the treatment, which dangerously dehydrates a person and can remove too much of the body's chemical supply, mainly potassium.

A book found among the possessions of one of the unidentified victims — A Cancer Therapy by the late Dr. Max B. Gerson — recommended coffee enemas every four hours or more frequently if needed.

Health officials have no way of preventing people from giving themselves coffee enemas, Bergner admitted. "I guess you can do anything you want to yourself."

He said anyone insisting on using the treatment should get frequent laboratory blood tests as a precaution.

Afraid they'd call little puke Luke?

Dad's for Lucas; Mom wants Steven

Many couples can't agree on a name for their offspring, but few go to the lengths Garfield Woods has to explain the disagreement with his wife Lynda. Woods, 28, purchased a 221-word birth announcement in a Toronto daily newspaper to explain why his five-day-old son is still known as Nameless Woods. Woods wants to name his son Lucas Garrett. But Mrs. Woods, 25, is insisting on the name Steven Lawrence. Mrs. Woods doesn't mind distinctive names, "but Lucas rhymes with mucus and that reminds me of having a cold."

Production begins this week on a $7.7-million United Artists film, Longriders, described as the biggest "double brother" act in movie history. The stars — Stacy and James Keach; David, Keith and Robert Carradine; Randy and Dennis Quaid, and Nicholas and Christopher Guest — are all playing brothers in the film. The Keaches are playing the legendary Jesse James and his brother Frank.

Elsewhere on the entertainment scene, retired movie and TV actress Dorothy Hart has filed a $60-million suit against the publishers of the book The Editor that allegedly describes her as a "sex machine . . . And the Soviet youth newspaper Komsomolskaya Pravda says Oscar-winning actress Jane Fonda is prevented from winning Oscars because of her political views.

In San Diego, Maria Bompensiero, the widow of underworld figure Frank Bompensiero, has filed a $1 million wrongful death claim against the federal government in the 1977 slaying of her husband, alleging a paid FBI informant conspired to murder him.

Aleck Lee Bledsoe, a fundamentalist Baptist preacher, who expelled a 14-year-old white girl from his Woodbridge, Va., private school for allegedly dating a black male classmate, testified in court Monday that his religious beliefs taught him that God is against interracial dating and marriage. Raymond Fielder is seeking $70,000 in damages on behalf of his daughter, Melissa, in the case brought by the American Civil Liberties Union.

A U.S. federal judge in Salt Lake City has told polygamist Stephen M. Andrews, 29, to give up one of his wives if he wants probation on his conviction of charges he stole more than a ton of plastic explosives from an army base.

Meanwhile, Waldo Ackerman, a federal judge in Springfield, Ill., has ruled that two teenage members of the United Pentecostal Church cannot be forced to violate their religious beliefs and attend co-ed gym classes where other students wear clothing such such as gym shorts, which the church considers "immodest."

Carter raps food moguls

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — Resorting to direct personal pressure on an industry for the first time in his fight against inflation, President Carter on Monday told leading middlemen in the food chain he is worried they are not passing price cuts on to the consumer.

Carter cited as examples the fact that the gap between on-the-farm prices and store prices for meat and fruit had increased by 109 per cent and 90 per cent respectively in the last three months.

But the 16 food industry representatives invited to the White House said some of the figures cited by the president are wrong, adding that food prices are largely at the mercy of overall inflation.

In his remarks to the industry representatives, who included heads of supermarket chains and food processing organizations, Carter did not directly accuse them of making excess profits.

But he said: "We've been particularly disturbed recently because the price of food to the farmers has been going down substantially and the price of the food to consumers at retail outlets has still been going up quite rapidly."

After the 70-minute meeting, Bob Aders, President of the Food Marketing Institute, said the president was told by those present that some of his figures are wrong.

He said he cannot supply correct figures but the president's data is "just too extremely wrong in our understanding."

Philatelist claims record

LONDON (UPI) — A London stamp dealer said today he has paid a world record price of more than $10 million for a New York financier's collection of American stamps and letters.

"This is far and away the biggest purchase ever made in the stamp world," said Jerry Waters of Stanley Gibbons International.

"It is the equivalent of purchasing one of the great private art collections."

The 3,000-item collection includes letters from American presidents from Washington onward, letters sent through Civil War battle lines under flags of truce, plus Pony Express and Wells Fargo "covers."

The collection was amassed over a 30-year period by Marc Haas, 71, a New York financier.

Ordered to jump boat, six refugees drown

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Two men have been accused of murder in the deaths of six persons — five of them children — who were forced into deep water from a boat loaded with Haitian refugees being smuggled into the United States, authorities say.

"The captain had a shotgun and ordered everyone overboard," Marie Ange Toussaint, 27, one of 11 survivors, said Monday. "He took my purse which had $1,000 and pushed us over the side" about one-half kilometre from shore.

James Knowles, 18, of Tarpon Bay, the Bahamas, and Jeffrey Robert Hastings, 29, of Hypoluxo, Fla., each was charged with six counts of first-degree murder.

The men are being held in lieu of bail — $90,000 for Knowles and $60,000 for Hastings.

Policeman Kurt Halbin of South Palm Beach said he shined his car's spotlight on the boat at 5:39 a.m.

"I heard a lot of screaming," Halbin said. "I turned my spotlight on and it hit right on them and someone started kicking people off."

Halbin said the boat's crew threw the children overboard and fired shots in the air to force others to jump.

Police said they believe the six drowning victims were a mother and her five children. The woman was in her 20s and her three boys ranged in age from four to 11 and her two girls were six and nine, police said.

Halbin said he and policeman David Ward heard the woman screaming.

"They were terrible screams," Ward said. "I guess she was looking for her children."

Police said the man identified as the boat's owner, John Ferguson, 36, of Delray Beach, was released after questioning.

"We received the evidence and decided it was inappropriate to hold Mr. Ferguson on any charge at this point," said assistant state attorney Bill King.

Police said survivors told them that the group, most in their teens and early 20s, wanted to find jobs in the United States.

The group took a boat to Freeport, Bahamas, where their meeting with the smugglers was arranged by a contact in Haiti. The group left Freeport about 11 p.m. Sunday, police said they were told.

The survivors came ashore at Lantana Beach, south of West Palm Beach, and just off the beach of the exclusive La Coquille Club. The two men were arrested on the club's grounds, authorities said.

Police said they were told by one of the survivors that each person aboard the boat paid $550 for the smugglers to bring them to the United States.

The survivors were taken into custody by South Palm Beach police, who gave them food and blankets. They later were turned over to immigration officials.

Authorities found a cabin cruiser abandoned about four hours after the incident.

Goodbye, Kathleen

There will no doubt be many a sigh of relief breathed around British Columbia with the announcement that Kathleen Ruff has resigned as director of the human rights branch. In her six years in the job, Ruff has trod on many toes in her singleminded persistence to obtain justice for members of minority groups.

Each sigh of relief, however, will be matched by sighs of deep regret from Sikhs, native Indians, the handicapped, women and members of B.C.'s many other minority groups who face a constant struggle to obtain the rights and acceptance the rest of us have.

For many people, Kathleen has been the only person they could count on for support them in their battles with landlords, business and the government itself. Countless times she stuck out her own neck to try to ensure that job opportunities were equally available to both sexes, that native Indians would not be excluded from certain hotels and apartments, that unpopular groups, such as homosexuals, would not be discriminated against.

For this, she was frequently vilified. She was accused of trampling on the rights of the majority in her efforts to protect the rights of the minority. And, since the Social Credit government came to power in 1975, she was frequently blocked and frustrated by the government that employed her.

It is doubtless true that Ruff's thinking in the area of human rights is far ahead of the mainstream of B.C. society. It is probably true also that she attempted to change attitudes and behaviors more quickly than was politically or practically possible.

For all that, Ruff has served an invaluable role in British Columbia. The landlords, the businesses, the government — all have plenty of spokesmen to tell their side of the story, to ensure that they receive just and fair treatment. The minorities and the downtrodden had Kathleen Ruff. For that alone, she will be much missed.

The government may now be tempted to appoint a successor who will not be such a thorn in its side. The temptation should be resisted.

Although it may occasionally be painful, the human rights branch needs another Kathleen Ruff.

Serpents? Sticks

Scientific debunkers have explained away practically every weird phenomenon known to man. Ghostly presences have been attributed to marsh gas and phosphorescence. The skeptical see unidentified flying objects as optical illusions in the sunset. Now a Canadian academic says many sightings of lake monsters are probably nothing more than "surface temperature inversions."

Poor Nessie, Ogopogo and Cadborosaurus and your finny, scaly kin — you're just a distortion of some mundane object caused by the refraction of light passing layers of air of different temperature.

Waldemar Lehn, an engineering professor at the University of Manitoba, reviewed the descriptions of several hundred sea monster sightings and even managed to produce some convincing photographs of a menacing beast — which was only a stick on the frozen ice of Lake Winnipeg.

Mind you, he doesn't scoff at all alleged monster sightings. Sonar data and actual photographs strongly suggest the presence of something down there in the cold, peaty waters of Loch Ness. It's just that many sightings are probably attributable to atmospheric distortion.

In lakes with reported monsters, Lehn found, the temperature difference between the surface water and the layers of air immediately above it is extreme. A cool layer of air next to the lake surface, lying below warmer layers above, acts like a distorting lens.

"Under the right conditions, inanimate objects can appear mobile," he wrote in the current issue of Nature magazine. If the cool layer of air is moving "perhaps containing wavelike undulations, the image can grow, shrink or move about. It can also appear and disappear without a sound or ripple, as many of the observations describe."

Prof. Lehn advises next time you sight a sea monster to check the temperature of the air and water. What seems to be a serpent may only be a stick.

Bullseye

You may have seen the item in the papers the other day. A pilot with the Spanish air force managed to shoot down his own plane but parachuted to safety. It seems that during target practice some of his bullets ricocheted and . . . ole!

A bit embarrassing, you say? Not at all. The trouble is there's too much negativism in today's world. One must be positive.

For instance, the Spanish haven't flown in battle since the civil war. Now, after more than 40 years, the air force has an ace marksman in its ranks. He can even boast of his record by painting a trophy mark on his aircraft, when he gets a new one.

Or how about this scenario? The captain could be honored as a daredevil who managed to escape unscathed though his plane was shot down in action over Spain.

Perhaps he should even get a medal. After all, every nation needs heroes these days.

Bravo!

What a splendid performance of I Do, I Do by the McPherson Theatre Company on Aug. 4! As a professional musician as well as amateur actor, I want to particularly convey my praise to the two-piano team of Jocelyn and Norman Abbott. It is so seldom that one hears such technical accomplishment and rapport in a show accompaniment, as well as a great element of sensitivity to the cast.

I found that the direction and choreography gave great credibility to this timeless tale of married life, the phases of which were brilliantly portrayed by Janet Senior and Colin Skinner.

On my travels across Canada and the United States this summer, I Do, I Do has certainly been the most memorable of all the entertainments that I have seen.

Bravo — and continued success to the McPherson Theatre Company. — Paul Dearborn, 1316 Winston Churchill Boulevard, Oakville, Ontario.

Help available

I am writing in response to a letter that recently appeared in your letters section under the heading, Welfare Problems.

The letter written by this lady indicates that she may not be aware of the full range of benefits that may be available to her through the ministry of human resources.

I think that this single parent wishing to contribute to her community through volunteer work is highly commendable. Through the community involvement program, the ministry supports participation in community service endeavors in order to benefit both the individual and the community. The mentioned costs of bus fare and clothes could certainly be provided for, up to a maximum of $50 per month.

In her letter the lady mentioned that the extra cost of a special diet was prohibitive. Additional expenses for approved diets are covered by the ministry's diet allowance program which has been in effect for some time.

My suggestion for the lady who wrote the letter, or to anyone who might be in a similar situation, is to always make sure that these concerns are brought to the attention of the worker at the ministry's district office. Staff are able to assist with these types of problems, both with information and direct assistance. — Grace M. McCarthy, Minister of Human Resources.

Desperate plea

I am absolutely appalled at the recent letters to the editor voicing negative attitudes toward the efforts of the Canadian government to help the "boat people." These letters cite many reasons for the disapproval, including energy shortages, unemployment and inflation to name a few. I do not pretend that these problems are imagined — certainly we are confronted by a host of economic difficulties at present, but have we, as Canadians, forgotten that, despite these difficulties, we are still among the most privileged nations in the world.

The majority of Canadians of the present generation have never known true privation. Compared with third world nations, the number of people in this country who go to bed hungry is negligible, in fact, the average Canadian family probably wastes more food in one day than some of the refugees have eaten in weeks.

People will argue that we must ignore sentimentality and make our decisions strictly out of logic and rationality, but it is totally beyond my comprehension how we can even consider ignoring such a desperate plea for help. To turn our backs on these people would be a most heinous crime against humanity. It is high time that we, as Canadians, stopped wallowing in self-pity, and rather turned our attentions toward helping these people so very much less fortunate than ourselves. — Susan Cottier, 1005 Sluggett Road, Brentwood Bay.

Not the first

The current ones are not the first "boat people" to land on west coast shores, although the original inhabitants did not refer to them as such. They called them Mamalni — people without land. They must have considered strange, the many pale skinned tribes who increasingly visited and traded. How foolish the Mamalni must have seemed to trade valuable metals and ornaments for skins of otters that a mere child could kill.

The first Mamalni, of the tribe who touch forehead and their crow people (they dress like crows, in black), who touch forehead more than any, with their totem with no art carved upon it, but sometimes a man nailed on it — How secure must the people have felt when the great Thunderbird fanned his wings and blew away the crow people from planting their totem on the peoples' shore.

Eventually, the Mamalni did get their totem on the shore, and many others of other white tribes with it. The furs and other life-sustaining factors diminished or disappeared. The original peoples were convinced to trade in their culture and lands to touch their foreheads or other rituals of the various Mamalni tribes. But the lifestyle of the Mamalni was not included with the swap.

Today, I wonder if the original people are mystified by the Mamalni, who are deeply concerned about the welfare of cats and dogs and whales and baby seals and faraway tribes of a different culture. But they seem to care little about the disadvantaged of their own tribes, let alone the original people who they convinced to give up their ways for "their own good." I know I am. — Larry Tickner, 589 Nora Place.

Careful procedure

My heart is fed with gladness due to the careful procedure the Saanich police give in reuniting bike owners with disappearing possessions. Clark gets a crash course in African affairs

LAHR, West Germany — He began the morning around 7 a.m. and by eight o'clock he had just about finished breakfast and was ready to meet the staff for the daily briefings.

Those who attended — the external affairs officials and others in the Canadian delegation with memories of grumpy Pierre Trudeau in the morning — were pleasantly surprised. Joe Clark is always affable, even in the morning.

"With Trudeau, the keen philosophical mind was there, but you never knew from one morning to the next what kind of mood he was going to be in." The official adds with a curious kind of defensiveness: "Clark is becoming more philosophical." He never explained how.

"I'm so affable I'll bore them all to death," said the prime minister in a brief interview aboard his Canadian Armed Forces jet carrying him on the first hop home, from Nairobi to the Canadian base at Lahr.

Still it is with Clark, any appraisal of his performance has to begin with a comparison to Trudeau.

At touchdown at Ottawa Sunday, he has flown 30,000 kilometres, visited four African countries — making the first bilateral prime ministerial visits to Africa — attended his first commonwealth conference and seen a lion in the grass.

Wiliest politicians

He visited Canadian aid projects, from a harbor redesign in the sweaty Cameroon port of Douala to 25,000 acres of wheat farms on the northwestern plateau of Tanzania.

He met Canadian missionaries and a Canadian cardinal and Canadian volunteer workers actively supporting the Zimbabwean revolutionaries in their war over Rhodesia. And he met some of the wiliest politicians in Africa, for that matter, in the world.

He saw some black African poverty — not more than glimpses of it from the windows of his limousines and the palatial guest houses where he stayed.

Clark visited Canadian troops at Lahr before heading home.

He was again and again asked for more Canadian aid — begged for more aid by Tanzania's Julius Nyerere — and time and again he said, no, not now, all the aid money is allocated now, and there won't be any more until after the new Conservative government re-examines aid policy.

Yet he signed a commonwealth head of government communique condemning the inequalities between the world's rich and poor countries. "Yes, you feel a little hypocritical," he admitted.

The sum of his trip:

External's officials have unhesitatingly labelled it a successful diplomatic adventure, an overdue reaffirming of ties into Africa. Clark has called the trip "personally more valuable than I can describe" and he referred to Africa as Canada's ocean to explore and serve in.

He is returning home with what might honestly be called a passionate conviction that the commonwealth is a body of immense importance.

He has been deeply impressed by the fact that such a disparate group as Britain's Thatcher, Tanzania's Nyerere, Jamaica's Manley and Nigeria's Foreign Minister Adefope could so speedily reach an accord on a problem so sticky as Rhodesia.

He also knows that the theme, the flashpoint issue, of the next commonwealth conference in 1981 is going to be north-south relation, rich states against poor, a tougher issue than Rhodesia. It means that Canada, which had only a back row seat in the Rhodesia negotiations, will be on the front line.

He says that Canada's foreign assistance has got to be increased. But he says that public opinion is still generally suspicious of aid and he adds: "It's not the most important concept I have to sell in Canada in the near future."

The foreign aid review question, he says, is "how much can we realistically increase assistance . . . I have some views which I'll hold to myself."

He wants a full debate in Parliament on the issue.

It is an issue of good issues.

Nyerere, talking to Canadian reporters, scorned the arguments of the developed countries that they can't increase aid because their citizens won't support them. It is odd, says Nyerere, that democracy should be the cause of not doing good. It is a question of leadership, he says. The people must be convinced.

Sweden, which has reached its international target for aid (while Canada still falls a long way short), allocates a healthy percentage of its foreign assistance budget for public information. It's been successful in raising public consciousness.

Leadership on aid? "Sure I'd be quite prepared to do that . . . certain kinds of aid are important . . ." and then he goes on to make his statement about it not being the most important concept he has to sell.

The comparisons to Trudeau:

Clark says many of the Commonwealth leaders were friends and admirers of Trudeau. He always talked well at these sessions, Clark says but then he adds: "I've always thought Trudeau talked better than he acted except on bilingualism."

Totally non-committal

He refers with pique back to the election campaign and "all the stuff Don Jamieson and Trudeau said about me" — how Joe Clark would blow it all at Tokyo and lose it all at Lusaka. People at the commonwealth conference had read those things about him and they had to adjust to a new picture, he said.

Nyerere made a rather playful comment about it when he toasted Clark at dinner in Dar es Salaam.

"Many of my colleagues from other member states were unknown to me except by their party labels and newspaper reports. Experience showed, once again, that such things are not always accurate reflections of attitudes and approach."

It made Clark feel happy.

Both men — Clark and Trudeau — are quick subjects for briefings. Both stick to their briefings (something that makes external people joyful in tete-a-tete meetings with other leaders. Neither needs to refer to notes.

Trudeau was often critical of his staff. Clark is not. The officials enjoy working with him. They find him emotionally steady and down to heart.

Trudeau, says one of external's people on the trip, seemed to have a preference for the dramatic foreign policy initiatives — recognition of China, the stillborn launching of the third option.

"Clark's policies will be less striking to the imagination but they will probably have a better chance of success." Smaller little baby steps.

Clark was boyishly enthusiastic about nobbing it with the greats of the commonwealth states, gossipping with reporters at casual meetings about his encounter with this leader and that. The harmony in the Canadian delegation was described as "super."

The sum of the trip:

What Clark has had is 15 days of exposure to African problems and African politics and the shape of Canadian aid in Africa.

He's had exposure to pressures to increase that aid, to put Canada in a more moral position in African affairs (more assistance to the Zimbabweans, stronger economic and political measures against the South Africans).

He's seen things and learned things, he's been totally non-committal (except to suggest that Canada can do more good for Africa developing wheat production that enmeshing itself in African politics). He's suggested that increasing foreign aid isn't a top priority.

And he says he didn't blow it on the world stage as Trudeau warned he would.

Maggie proves her stuff in first 100 days

By R.W. APPLE Jr.
New York Times

LONDON — Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher has completed her first 100 days in office, and already she has stamped her style and her boldly Conservative point of view on the British government.

Domestically, she has begun to scale down the welfare state and the taxes that support it, as she promised during the election campaign, although the effort has cost her some of her popularity. Here as in other democracies, voters seem to want less government, except when cutbacks directly affect them.

In foreign affairs the new prime minister made a somewhat shaky start. But she reached the 100-day milestone in the afterglow of an unexpected personal triumph at the Commonwealth conference.

Yet it appears to be far too early to make even a tentative judgment of the Thatcher administration. She seeks nothing less than the reversal of the postwar decline of British society. That will require perseverance as well as flair, inevitably creating stresses and crises that cannot be foreseen.

Six months from now, most politicians believe, Mrs. Thatcher will be confronting more directly the intractable problems of the domestic economy, most notably inflation, that so bedeviled Home and Heath, Wilson and Callaghan, her predecessors at 10 Downing Street. The insiders at Westminster think she will find the unions harder to reason with than the politicians at the conference in Zambia.

By reaching agreement there with 38 of the 40 other Commonwealth countries on a new peace proposal for Zimbabwe Rhodesia, the prime minister convinced many of her skeptical countrymen that she could operate skilfully in the international arena. She also went some way toward allaying the widespread fear that she was too inflexible to deal with complex problems.

A photograph of Mrs. Thatcher dancing happily with President Kenneth D. Kaunda of Zambia, with whom she had seemed likely to clash over Zimbabwe Rhodesia, has been printed and reprinted in British newspapers — an invaluable piece of public relations that will doubtless linger in the minds of many voters. Sir Harold Wilson, who was prime minister when the Labor Party was in power, had nothing but praise for her performance in Lusaka, a view shared by most politicians of both major parties and by the press.

Nonetheless the Rhodesian problem, like the others with which the prime minister has been wrestling since the Conservative Party swept into office May 5, remains unresolved. The hostility of the South Africans and the Rhodesian whites to the Commonwealth proposals, as well as the reservations voiced in Salisbury by Prime Minister Abel T. Muzorewa and the difficult question of the composition of the army, could block discussion at the all-party conference planned in London next month.

If the Lusaka initiative comes apart, as have earlier efforts prompted by the British, Mrs. Thatcher will seem less a miracle worker than she does today, but she may well have permanently shed the view of Labor politicians that she is "the iron lady."

For that, in large measure, she can thank her foreign secretary, Lord Carrington. Because of his experience with her when the Conservatives were in opposition, he said privately just after the election, he was sure he could bring her to see that in the long run immediate recognition of Bishop Muzorewa's biracial government would alienate Britain's allies while failing to end the guerrilla war. He has been proven right.

Gradually, the foreign secretary turned Mrs. Thatcher away from a commitment in the Conservative manifesto to move promptly toward recognition. He sent Lord Harlech to open discussions with black Africa and worked out a common approach with the Americans, who have long been involved with the British in efforts to resolve a situation that dates from 1965.

Thatcher dances with President Kenneth Kaunda of Zambia

Mrs. Thatcher's impulsive and widely reported statement in Australia on July 1 that it was unlikely that Parliament would renew economic sanctions against the Salisbury government seemed to suggest that Lord Carrington had been overruled. But she made another and ultimately more meaningful statement at the same time that received little attention. "A number of people," she observed mildly, were "slightly critical" of the Constitution under which the Muzorewa government was formed and which reserves disproportionate powers to the white minority.

That was the key idea. In Lusaka the prime minister endorsed forthright criticism of the Constitution, justifying the search for a new solution and precluding a possible breakup of the Commonwealth. Though her change was criticized by the right wing of her party, most notably by Julian Amery, a longtime defender of the interests of the Rhodesian whites, she seems thoroughly in command of most backbenchers.

Her control of the party is only one aspect of what professional politicians consider a technically dazzling performance in her first months in office. She has run the cabinet effectively, performed far better as an orator in the House of Commons than her keenest supporters expected and avoided gaffes in her public appearances.

Mrs. Thatcher has begun to do much of what she promised to do, cutting the top rate on income tax from 83 per cent to 60 and the basic rate from 33 per cent to 30, putting shares in nationalized companies on sale and halting new hiring for the civil service. She has also felt obliged to increase the value-added, or sales, tax to 15 per cent, from 8.5, and to reduce public expenditures in areas that will quickly have an impact on ordinary citizens. These measures have apparently cost her considerable popularity.

She has walked more softly in some areas than the Conservative manifesto suggested she would. She has not pushed terribly hard for reforms in the labor-relations law, for example, and she has agreed to continue subsidies to the shipbuilding industry despite her strictures on "lame ducks."

A Gallup poll taken in mid-July indicated that 47 per cent of Britons were dissatisfied with their new government, while 41 per cent were satisfied. Having just lost the election, Labor was running ahead of the Conservatives, 46 per cent to 41, with 11.5 per cent of the respondents supporting the Liberals.

The prime minister has said from the start that the impact of her program would have to be judged over a matter of years, not months, and she has a sufficiently large majority in the Commons to ignore the polls. The real tests still lie ahead, and she and her advisers concede as much.

"You call it a honeymoon in the States," a member of the government said, "and it's a good description of what we have been living through. But it will be over this winter. The Treasury is predicting 15 percent inflation by next month, and the trade-union boys know that as well as you do. Will businessmen resist big wage demands? Will we accept the unemployment that's bound to result from some of our ideas on what should happen with public-sector employees? It's all very well to say she has demonstrated her competence. The people who knew her knew all about that. In February and March we will be testing her will and that of the country as well."

"I'm not entirely convinced yet that we have built a consensus for fundamental change in Britain," he added.

The forgotten heroes

Russell Baker

NEW YORK — Maybe Washington really is another country. Certainly nobody living in the United States could have dreamed up the suggestion, which came out of Washington the other day, that filling stations be allowed to charge for washing your windshield, checking tire pressures and performing similar small services.

In the United States, filling stations have not performed services of this sort since 1973. Most motorists pulling up to a gas pump these days would no sooner think of asking to have their tires checked than they would dream of asking the attendant to clip their toenails.

Gasoline pumpers may be different in Washington. In the nation's capital, motorists may still select their filling stations for the quality of the free dishes distributed with each $5 purchase of Arabian joy juice or for the attendant's free hand with S&H Green Stamps. Maybe down there you can even get a free pedicure at the gas pump.

In the United States you can't even get a free road map anymore. Certain generous filling stations will let you look at the house road map, but if you are lost in hostile territory nowadays you stay lost until you get pulled over for a traffic violation, which gives you a chance to ask directions from the judge.

These Washington proposals for raising the income of gasoline salesmen hark back to an era when Buck £ Pete's place on the corner was called a "service station." Graybeards approaching the age of 30 can still remember Buck and Pete. Pete was the fellow who was there at 3 o'clock in the morning when, halfway through David Copperfield, you ran out of cigarettes and, hopping into the car, drove around to Buck & Pete's place to use the cigarette machine.

Pete would leap to the gas pumps with a big grin, which must have taken a lot of his courage considering that at that hour of the morning the odds were excellent that he would find himself grinning into the pistol barrel of a stickup man.

"No gas" you told him. "Just want to use your cigarette machine."

"Right inside," said Pete. And when you came out he would be busy washing your windshield. It was all right to be a bit curt with him. After all, he was sitting on all that gasoline that nobody wanted at 3 o'clock in the morning and back home, sleeping, he had two or three kids to put through college. By giving you a free windshield wash, he was probably using guile, thinking you might be soft enough to buy a gallon or two in return for the kindness. You had to be hard in those days to avoid ending up with a full tank every time you ran out of cigarettes.

So you said, "Be careful washing that windshield. I don't want any smears on it."

"How about a free beer mug with a genuine National Football League logo?" Pete would ask, offering same imprinted with "Philadelphia Eagles" or "Kansas City Chiefs."

"The Philadelphia Eagles? You've got to be kidding." And you roared off into the night to return to David Copperfield.

Buck came on duty at 6 a.m., checked to see if Pete had been shot by stickup men, refilled the cigarette machine, stacked the three beer mugs in a fetching display and prayed that it wouldn't rain.

When you pulled in at dawn, your station wagon loaded to within an inch of its springs with three children, a wife, accompanying luggage and heavy vacation accessories, Buck would dash out with a broad grin, no matter how hard it was raining.

"Fill 'er up?" he always asked.

"I filled her up last night at Charley's, but I need some road maps. We're headed up toward Maine for a vacation." Buck would slosh off through the downpour and come back with four or five maps. While you sat there studying them, why not have Buck check that right rear tire?

Pretty soon Buck would be back hammering at the window for attention. "Tread's pretty low," he would howl through the deluge. "With a load like this, I wouldn't risk my kids on that tire on a day like this."

Thank heaven for good old Buck, protector of chattels, wife and children, comforter to insurance tycoons. "I can sell you the new four-ply, six-bias, tiger-claw road gripper on special at 20 per cent discount," Buck would say, "and give you three pounds of S&H Green Stamps on the purchase."

"That won't be necessary," you could tell him. "I've got a perfectly good spare in the back under all those suitcases and children. If you'll just haul them out of there, you can get to it and change the tire. Oh, and don't get the suitcases all wet, fella."

And Buck would do the job without committing violence against anyone. There was a small charge for that, usually just big enough to pay for patching the hole he tore in his raincoat when he got hooked on the fishing tackle. If he charged much more, he knew very well that he risked losing your 3 a.m. cigarette business to Charley's.

Buck and Pete, heroes of the American past — we shall not see their like again. In fact, we haven't seen it since 1973, at least outside of Washington.

China smells money

By JAMES STERBA

PEKING — Wu Jui Kun pointed through a display case to a jar of Maxam Brand White Fungus Pearl Cream. "It's very good and it smells wonderful," he said. "It softens and nourishes the skin." Alongside it were various perfumes, scented soaps and lotions, lipstick, fingernail polish and even rouge — all part of an exhibit in Peking's Zhongshan Park to inform ordinary Chinese that it is now okay to look nice and smell good.

The Chinese government is officially encouraging this as part of a larger effort to promote the nation's rapidly growing industry in perfumes, essential oils, and aromatic chemicals. The reputation of this industry was badly besmirched in the past, explained officials at the exhibition, by Lin Piao and the Gang of Four, who misguided the masses by telling them that good revolutionaries did not run around smelling like Midnight Mist or Old Spice.

Those former Chinese leaders regarded the perfume business as little more than a servant for the bourgeoisie. After the Gang of Four was toppled in 1976, however, China's new pragmatic rulers began smelling something else in their jasmine blossoms: money.

So the perfume industry was quickly rehabilitated. It is now called a tool of the people. China has 32 perfume factories in 13 provinces and cities which produce 112 kinds of essential oils, fragrances and spices, about 200 aromatic chemicals and 456 aromatic compounds. While these factories employ only about 6,200 people, they support tens of thousands of peasants and commune workers who grow or collect some of the 349 species of aromatic plants that grow in China.

In defence of Trinity

JOHN CHERRINGTON

(Cherrington is a Langley, B.C. lawyer who is legal counsel for Trinity Western College. This is a letter written to the Province).

Ordinarily, I find your editorials and newspaper to be most informative and entertaining. However, your recent editorial and articles concerning Trinity Western College and the bill recently passed by the legislature represent the worst in ill-informed and biased opinion and reporting I have witnessed in recent years.

As legal counsel for the college, let me inform you of the following facts:

(1) Two years ago, the legislature unanimously agreed to change Trinity Western College's status from a two-year transfer college to a full four-year university, leaving the) degree-granting question unclear. (It's strange that the NDP forgot to mention this in the debate; but note that certain NDP members were notably absent when the vote was taken.)

(2) During the past two years, Trinity Western College has worked assiduously with the department of education and made contact with the public universities at the academic level, but the Universities Council did not bother to accept invitations to visit the campus and develop an insight into the Trinity Western College situation.

(3) At the recent legislative committee hearing which preceded the passage of the bill, Dr. Neil Perry from the Universities Council admitted that Trinity Western College had the highest of standards and that he had heard nothing but praise from higher academic circles respecting students transferring from Trinity Western College to public universities after completion of two-year programs.

(4) It was not Dr. McGeer, minister of education, who proposed the bill which passed, but a private member; and I might say that it was only after the minister satisfied himself after two years that Trinity Western College was a uniquely qualified institution, that he lent his support to the bill.

(5) Since Trinity Western College was originally incorporated by private statute, it is by no means clear that the Universities Council has any legal right whatsoever in having any input in Trinity Western College's status.

I find it truly amazing that at a time when the true gobblers of public monies — public universities — are experiencing static or declining enrolment, that they should set their sights on a small college that bears the following attributes, among others:

(a) Possesses a faculty with academic qualifications easily rivalling the public universities;

(b) Graduates students who achieve better than their counterparts from public transfer colleges;

(c) Survives and flourishes for 17 years without one cent of provincial education monies (some federal funds were recently provided under an earlier federal-provincial agreement);

(d) Maintains library, gymnasium and other facilities that are used extensively by the Fraser Valley community year-round — unlike the sacred sanctums of many public education institutions.

It is understandable however that certain members of the Universities Council would lobby desperately to preserve their monopoly over higher education; they are merely protecting their elitist turf; but that your newspaper should aid and abet in this effort is inexcusable.

Allen C. Jackson, president and chief operating officer, told shareholders that company sales of no-name products are averaging $1.25 million a week.

Dominion plans to open 12 new stores this year as well as expanding six others. In September, the company will open a new 120,000 square foot warehouse in Winnipeg.

McIntyre Mines

Earnings for McIntyre Mines Ltd., operator of the Smoky River coal mine near Grande Cache, Alta., fell in the first six months of this year as the mine coped with reduced orders.

Deliveries from the mine near Grande Cache fell to 409,052 tonnes in the first six months of 1979, compared with 636,618 tonnes in the first half of 1978.

An interim report to McIntyre shareholders says operating earnings before a deferred income tax credit totalled $1,164,000 for the first half of the year, compared with $2,354,000 for the first half of 1978.

But after-tax earnings were $2,021,000, or 85 cents a share.

Consolidated earnings, including undistributed net earnings of affiliates Falconbridge Nickel Mines Ltd. and Madeline Mines Ltd. were $19,703,000, or $8.32 a share, compared with $46,000, or two cents a share, for the first six months of 1978.

The Smoky River mine had been in danger of shutting down earlier this year before conclusion of a two-year, $94.4-million contract with Japanese steel mills for 1.4 million tonnes of coal.

Traders Group

Traders Group Ltd. reports a drop in profit for the six months ending June 30 to $5,178,000 or 79 cents a share from $8,729,000 or $1.51 a share for the same period a year ago.

The Toronto-based company said profit fell because of the higher cost of money caused by record high interest rates.

Canada Cement

Canada Cement Lafarge Ltd. reports profits of $4.67 million, or 22 cents per common share, for the first half of 1979, up 55 per cent from $3 million, or 13 cents a share, for the same period in 1978. The company said sales growth in the United States and Alberta pushed sales up to $245.8 million from $204.1 million a year earlier, despite lower sales in much of Canada.

Nina surprises Czech star

TORONTO (CP) — Nina Bland played the perfect role of giant-killer at the Canadian Open tennis championships Monday.

The petite, 20-year-old from Victoria overwhelmed giant Renata Tomanova of Czechoslovakia, the tournament's second seed, 6-1, 6-4 in a first-round women's singles match at the $210,000 tournament.

"This is my biggest win ever," said Bland, who only 10 days ago almost had to withdraw from a third-place playoff at the Canadian nationals that eventually qualified her for this tournament.

Bland had few problems with Tomanova, although the blonde-haired Czech rallied from a 4-0 deficit in the second set to throw a bit of a scare into the Canadian's game plan.

Bland faltered to allow Tomanova to close to 5-4 and was noticeably tiring when she broke the Czech's service in the deciding game.

Tomanova, down three match points, fought off one of them before hitting a forehand shot long, giving Bland the match and a second-round date with Mary Carillo of the United States.

"I tried to move her around and let her make the mistakes," Bland said of her pre-match strategy. "I'd vary my shots short and long."

Dana Gilbert of the U.S. defeated third-seeded Tanya Harford of South Africa 0-6, 6-3, 6-2 to post the only other upset in women's competition.

In other women's play, Lea Antonoplis of the U.S. defeated Lise Senn of Toronto 6-1, 6-3, Lisa Doherty of the U.S. defeated Mariana Simionescu of Romania 6-3, 6-1 and Janet Newberry of the U.S., the fifth seed, eliminated Marjorie Blackwood of Ottawa, the Canadian national champion, 6-2, 7-6.

There were two upsets in the men's draw — Jaime Fillol of Chile downed fourth-seeded Harold Solomon of the U.S. 3-6, 7-5, 6-2 and Bill Scanlon of the U.S. defeated seventh-seeded John Alexander of Australia 2-6, 6-4, 6-2.

Top-seeded Bjorn Borg of Sweden plays his first-round match today against Bruce Manson of the U.S., the only person to have beaten Borg in a first-round match all year.

Three Canadians were eliminated in men's play. Brian Teacher of the U.S. defeated Rejean Genois of Quebec City 7-6, 6-0, Mike Grant of the U.S. beat Robert Bettauer of Vancouver 6-3, 6-4 and Dominique Bedel of France downed Derek Segal of Toronto 6-2, 7-5.

A match between Mark Edmondson of Australia and John Lloyd of Britain was suspended because of darkness.

Kevin Alexander scored three goals and added two assists to lead the Shamrock attack.

Bob Cool, Joel McCrea, Dave Lowden, Ivan Thompson and Jim Lynch each scored two goals for the winners who held period leads of 7-2 and 14-4. Gerry Cadwallader, Jim Boyd, Tarey Pollock, Steve Buckley and Rhys Wickes completed the scoring.

Willers captures gold with easy hammer toss

Times News Services

SASKATOON — Harold Willers of Victoria helped British Columbia into a close runner-up position in gold medals during the opening day of the Western Canada Summer Games here Monday.

Willers captured a gold in the hammer throw and made winning look easy. His toss of 62.58 metres was more than nine metres farther than the runner-up Fred Sommer of Burnaby but was short of the record set in the inaugural 1975 meet by another Victorian, Murray Keating.

A scratch and a disqualification in canoeing, meanwhile, gave Alberta the lead with eight golds, seven of them in track and field, to seven for British Columbia and two for Manitoba. Saskatchewan went without the first day.

Gold medals, known as Awards of Excellence, are awarded only to first-place finishers in the Olympic-style competitions. All other participants get silver medals, known as Awards of Achievement, for competing.

The Games cover 23 sports in seven days of competition. The first Summer Games were held in Regina in 1975.

Craig Hannan, Neil McCallum and Rick Lepore, all of Calgary, and Bruce Lord of Edmonton won the canoeing gold after the Manitoba team had to scratch before the race began because it was one canoeist short. The B.C. team was disqualified during the race.

In track and field, Alberta golds went to Glenn Runcie of Edmonton in the men's discus, Barry Boyd of Edmonton in the men's long jump, Peter Butler of Calgary in the men's 10,000 metres and Frank Van Doorn of Edmonton in the men's 200 metres. The Alberta team of Allan Godfrey of Calgary, Van Doorn and Ian Newhouse and Ron Jackson, both of Edmonton, took the 4x400 men's relay. Margo Howe of Edmonton won the women's 100 metres and Becky Sjare of Red Deer the women's shot put.

British Columbia swept both medal diving events as Gord Peterson of Burnaby and Tracey Janes of Vancouver won the three-metre and one-metre events respectively.

B.C. struck other golds in track and field with Harold Heer of Vancouver winning the men's pole vault, Yvonne Coelho of Vancouver taking the long jump, Laurie Kern of Richmond winning the javelin and Madelaine Kelly of Vancouver topping the women's five-kilometre walk.

The two Manitoba medals went to Angela Chalmers in the women's 1,500 metres and Scott Flagel in the men's 110-metre hurdles.

Ann Webster of Victoia was second to Chalmers, Craig Taylor of Courtenay was second in the long jump, Laura Mahoney of Victoria placed third in the 100 metres and Mike Creery of Victoria was 10th in the 10,000.

In diving, Peterson finished the preliminary dives ahead of the pack and never looked back in the final round.

The diving continues today and the youngest competitor in the games, Holly Gates, 11, of Saskatoon will get another chance. With only eight months experience, she was quickly eliminated in the women's one-metre event, but looked forward to three-metre and tower competition.

In the first day of round-robin water polo, British Columbia took two games, Alberta and Saskatchewan one each and Manitoba was winless.

In volleyball round-robin play, Saskatchewan led with two wins to one for Manitoba and none for Alberta and B.C.

After two rounds in team handball, in men's competition, Alberta has the lead with two wins and in women's play, Manitoba has two wins.

In field hockey, B.C. has the lead with two wins to one each for Alberta and Manitoba. In women's basketball, British Columbia and Saskatchewan each have a win and in men's play, Saskatchewan has two wins to one each for British Columbia and Manitoba.

Leos, Stamps face hot defensive clash

EDMONTON (CP) — Two of the toughest defences in the Canadian Football League square off Wednesday when Calgary Stampeders play host to British Columbia Lions.

The B.C.-Calgary contest is one of four CFL games this week. Saskatchewan Roughriders visit Toronto Argonauts Wednesday. Tonight, defending-champion Edmonton Eskimos play in Ottawa and Hamilton is at Winnipeg.

The Lions are hoping to maintain their improved pass rush, which resulted in six quarterback sacks last week against the Eskimos, the defending Grey Cup champions.

But Calgary's defence is also hot — after throttling Ottawa last week. Besides, the Stampeders have the psychological edge: they beat the Lions 32-1 in a pre-season exhibition game.

"We really have to have the same intense play against Calgary," said B.C. defensive end Louie Richardson, who was responsible for two of the sacks against Edmonton.

"I think we're better this year because we've got the confidence in ourselves that we can win."

And win is what the undefeated Lions want to do with the Eskimos, the only other undefeated team in the league, and the Stampeders snapping at their heels in the western conference.

The front four against Calgary will be ends Richardson and Drew Taylor, both imports, and Canadian tackles Frank Landy and Rick Glotz. Rookie tackle Nick Hebeler, the team's best pass rusher, may go on the injury list with a bum ankle, joining another defensive tackle, Doug Seymour.

Lions have worked on a three-man line and four linebackers in case of more injuries to the front four.

Toronto and Saskatchewan clash in the other Wednesday game, with the Argos roaring for more after their 25-0 romp over Hamilton Tiger-Cats last week and the Roughriders trying to stop their losing streak.

Toronto quarterback Tony Adams will be back in action after suffering rib injuries in the game against Hamilton and coach Forrest Gregg has decided not to dress veteran Chuck Ealey, who was released after a five-day trial.

Tonight in Ottawa, the Eskimos will face the Rough Riders at Lansdowne Park for the first time since Oct. 1, 1977. For Hank Ilesic, Edmonton's young punter, tonight's game has a special meaning.

In his only previous CFL game at Lansdowne Park, Ilesic could only manage an average of 25.7 yards on six punts. One of the kicks went 22 yards before landing on a clubmate's head.

But Ilesic has since matured and he wants to show it tonight. Last year, he won the league punting title with a 47.3-yard average.

McCaig scores Canadian goal

HONG KONG (CP) — Canada's national youth soccer team began a four-game exhibition visit to this island colony Tuesday with a 3-0 victory over a local club, Caroline Hill.

Dave McCaig of Victoria, Danny Lenarduzzi of Vancouver and Louis Nagy of Hamilton scored the Canadian goals.

The Canadian team, following its series of exhibitions here, goes to Kobe, Japan, for the the world youth championships, starting Aug. 21.

Judy Rankin back on track

JERICHO, N.Y. (AP) — Judy Rankin managed to snap out of a year-long slump Monday by successfully defending her title in a $100,000 Ladies Professional Golf Association tournament with a final-round 70 for a four-under 288 total.

The final round was postponed Sunday by heavy rains. For the 34-year old Rankin, it was a blessing in disguise. She had dropped four strokes behind rookie Beth Daniel before the skies opened up to wash out the round on the par-73, 6,460-yard Meadow Brook Club.

As a result, Monday saw Rankin and Daniel start play deadlocked with Donna Caponi Young for the top spot. Daniel, a 22-year-old graduate of Furman University, wound up with a 72 and 290 total for second place and earned $9,800.

Young was one spot behind with a 74 and 292.

Oakville, Ont., native Sandra Post shot a final-round 76 for 306 and $780 while Dale Shaw of Victoria finished at 76-311 and collected $370.

Spot as leader is wrong place

WETHERSFIELD, Conn. (AP) — The one place you didn't want to be as today's final round of the Greater Hartford Open golf tournament started was in front.

That was the assessment of two veteran golfers who, oddly enough, were tied for third, one stroke behind the two leaders.

"This is the hardest course on the tour to lead," said Jerry McGee, who is at 11-under-par 202 after three rounds.

The problem, say McGee and J. C. Snead, is the length of the par 71 course — 6,534 yards — which is the shortest on the PGA tour.

"If your putter isn't hot, you're in trouble, you're going to get overhauled," said McGee.

Agreeing with McGee on Monday after three rounds of the $300,000 tournament was Snead, the golfer sharing third place with him.

"Anybody can shoot a 62 or 63 and blow everybody out," said Snead, who had led the rain-delayed tournament for almost three days.

Even the leaders, George Cadle and Jack Renner, were unimpressed by their front-running position going into today's final 18 holes. They both shot 66s Monday for 12-under-par 201s.

The tourney's conclusion today will mark the first time in a dozen years that a PGA event has ended on a Tuesday.

B.C. team tied at top

LETHBRIDGE, Alta. (CP) — Four teams were tied for first place after Monday's competition in the Canadian little league baseball championships.

Quebec, British Columbia and the two Lethbridge teams each had 2-1 records. Saint John, N.B., representing the Maritimes, was 1-2, while Ontario, represented by Thunder Bay, was 0-3.

Saint John handed Lethbridge Norcrest, the Prairie representative, its first loss of the tournament Monday with a score of 8-1. The host Lethbridge Lakeside squad also suffered its first defeat, losing 3-2 to Vancouver-Victoria Drive.

Professionals wooing six Cougar graduates

By ERNIE FEDORUK
Times Staff

Defenceman Mark Robinson, with a year of junior eligibilty ahead of him, was the only Victoria Cougar selected in the National Hockey League's amateur draft last week, but the professionals are still wooing at least six other players graduating from the Western Hockey League team.

Centre Geordie Robertson has had 10 offers, including "a couple of very interesting ones."

Gary Lupul, also a centre, has been contacted by "several" teams, including Vancouver Canucks.

Winger Mike Shields and defenceman Scott Lang both have been approached by two NHL teams while Philadelphia Flyers are interested in winger George Fritz.

Fritz, however, has a concrete offer to play in Germany and has indicated he may play his hockey in Europe next season. Fritz has until Aug. 23 to decide on the overseas offer.

Another member of last year's team is definitely headed for the Black Hawk camp. Goaltender Steve Amiss was passed over in the 1978 draft and returned to the Cougars as the team's overage performer. The redhead, a free agent, has signed a tryout form with Chicago.

Both Robertson and Lupul are represented by Bill MacFarlane, a former pro player who now is a lawyer-agent. Both Detroit Red Wings and Vancouver expressed interest in having Robertson and Lupul attend training camp as a "package."

MacFarlane has refused to negotiate on the package basis and will barter for the centres individually.

Both Robertson and Lupul were disappointed they were not selected in the draft but both were heartened by the post-draft play.

"The first phone call came five minutes after the draft ended," said Jim Robertson, Geordie's father. "And the phone hasn't stopped ringing."

In addition to the interest expressed by the 10 NHL clubs, Geordie also has received two "firm and full" scholarship offers from Canadian universities.

Buffalo Sabres, who claimed Robinson in the third round, and Atlanta Flames may have the inside track on Robertson's services. Both have promised Robertson a chance to play in the American League if he fails to make the NHL club.

Similarly, Lupul has been offered "definited" minor pro promises. Vancouver has dangled Dallas, the Canucks' Central League farm club, as a certainty for Lupul if he fails to make the NHL club.

Both Lupul and Robertson, however, are putting their faith in MacFarlane for the "best possible deal."

Lou's big hit follows pitch under chin

ST. LOUIS (AP) — At a time when Lou Brock's attention had begun to fade, a fastball from Dennis Lamp under the chin served to awaken the aging superstar.

"I waited 19 years for this," Brock said Monday after reaching a major league baseball milestone with his 3,000th career hit to help the Cardinals to a 3-2 victory. "It couldn't have come at a better time, in as much as it came against the team that I started with."

Ahead of the timetable he had set for himself, Brock got hit No. 2,999 in the first inning when he blooped a single to left field on a 1-1 delivery from Lamp.

Then in the fourth inning, he lined a 2-2 pitch back to the box for a single, reaching the remarkable plateau at age 40.

On the pitch before his historic hit, Lamp got a fastball up and in, sending Brock to the ground.

"I think that the only thing that really distracted me was the little fastball under the chin," Brock said. "It kind of jarred me back to reality. After that, it made me realize that I wasn't concentrating as much as I had to.

"My first home run came against the Cardinals, and my 3,000th hit against the Cubs. It's kind of symbolic."

Before going to bat in the first, Brock received a standing ovation from the crowd of 44,457. After his milestone hit, Brock's teammates and photographers poured onto the field, and the game was held up for a brief ceremony. Brock doffed his helmet to the crowd, and was greeted by Stan Musial, the first Cardinals player in history to reach the 3,000 plateau. Musial did it in 1958 and ended his career with 3,630 hits.

In other National League action, Pittsburgh Pirates completed their four-game series at Philadelphia on Monday night, winning 9-1 and taking three of the crucial games. The loss left the Phillies, defending division champions, eight games back. Montreal Expos, who also lost Monday, are 2½ back.

Houston, the West Division leader, meanwhile, was helping Pittsburgh open up the East with a 4-1 victory over the Expos.

In the American League, Ben Oglivie came off the bench to crack a two-out, pinch-hit homer in the bottom of the ninth to give Milwaukee Brewers a 5-4 victory over Kansas City Royals, New York Yankees edged Texas Rangers 3-2, Chicago White Soxblasted Baltimore Orioles 7-0, Boston Red Sox downed Minnesota Twins 6-5, Cleveland Indians whipped Seattle Mariners 6-0, Detroit Tigers beat California Angels 5-3 and Toronto Blue Jays shaded Oakland A's 3-2.

Morganti, Rod Murphy and Nick Hopkins drove in two runs each.

Cedar Hill cycle complete with young Munn on hand

Some of the things they may have not told you while I was out not catching any fish:

For those who want to go back a few years, the second generation has moved into the pro shop at Cedar Hill Golf Club. Lyle Crawford's new assistant for the summer is Ricky Munn, the son of Point Grey pro Dick Munn, who got his start as the Saanich course's first professional. Ricky got the job on his own merits. Dick didn't hear about it until days later and Crawford admitted the connection "didn't click" until Ricky was on the job for a few days.

In terms of numbers, and what it may do for Victoria's economy, one of the biggest tournaments coming our way in 1982 will be Rotary International's annual. Don Straith has been working hard on this one. It has never been held in our country and Canada has been awarded the '82 event. Victoria, in all probability, will get it. In which case, at least two courses, and possibly three, will have to be used.

* * *

The regulars in Eaton's Gordie Howe Invitational are going to insist that Jack Northup be given a saliva test in the future. When the ol' firefighter teamed up with Dave Stubbs, Tony Ritchie and Chuck Wilson to win this year's tournament at Colwood, it marked the third time Northup has been a member of the winning team. They won it with an 18-under 52, and you have to suspect that Stubbs' work with the hammer and Wilson's tugs at the suds pump has strengthened their wrists for golf.

* * *

New owner of Sooke's Broome Hill course is John Makowsky, who played a lot of intermediate hockey around here until getting into the hotel business in Prince George. Now you know Broome Hill will be the host club for a Vancouver Island hockey oldtimers' golf tournament Aug. 25. They're working on a format to make it ultra-interesting but there will be room only for 72... A public apology to Claude Ivor Mackenzie and Victoria Golf Club for not being able to attend the Captain's 100th birthday party. The July 29 party was a fitting tribute to the club's oldest active member, still the great golf enthusiast.

* * *

What's in a number? For Eardley Wright of Victoria, it was a hole-in-one. When he played the eighth hole at Oak Bay on the eighth day of the eighth month, Eardley used an eight iron to score his ace. What can be more simpler?

Oak Bay's eighth also gave up two more in recent days. Professional John Morgan ticked off one and Bill Ross followed with his first in 50 years of trying.

Another one connecting after more than half a century of playing the "humbling game" was Barley Humber. He finally clicked on Uplands' 11th. Uplands' clubmate Reg Elliott got one on the same hole earlier.

Rick Casson, on the 16th, and Roy Kirby, on the 14th, recorded aces at Gorge Vale while Gord McFarland came up with one on Glen Meadows' 15th.

* * *

BRIEFLY: Cowichan golfers took all the main prizes in the Duncan-Cowichan Summer Festival tournament . . . Glen Martin and Amato Fantillo won men's low gross and net honors, respectively, while Lee Budden and Ena Evans topped the women's competition . . . Rainer defeated Royal Colwood in their annual inter-club series that wound up Sunday while the Gorge gang went 12 points up in their set-to with Port Angeles . . . Next Sunday is the deadline for entries in the annual CFAX-Metro Honda tournament, coming up Aug. 25-26 at Cedar Hill . . . 26th annual RCMP Invitational tournament is set for Colwood Sept. 7 and entries should be in the hands of Don Maryku-ca (388-3588) no later than Aug. 31.

Gales smash racing yachts

PLYMOUTH, England (AP) — The international Fastnet yacht race changed from a sports event to a desperate rescue operation today in violent gales and mountainous seas that claimed at least two lives off England's southwest coast.

Two bodies, not immediately identified, were recovered after being washed overboard. At least 39 other crew members were rescued from the sea, and a dozen or more yachts were in distress, officials said.

"It has become more of a battle against the weather than a battle between the yachts," said a spokesman for the race organizers, the Royal Ocean Racing Club.

More than 300 yachts had set out from Cowes, Isle of Wight, Saturday in the 968.5-kilometre (605-mile) race. Fifty-four of them from 19 countries were climaxing the five-race Admiral's Cup series in which the United States was running neck-and-neck with the Irish team.

The boats reached Fastnet Rock off Ireland's southwest tip Monday as rough weather started to blow up in the Atlantic. By Monday night, violent storms wrenched the seas as the yachts headed for the finish line at Plymouth, England.

One of the boats in the thick of things was Morning Cloud, skippered by former British prime minister Edward Heath.

Royal Air Force jets and helicopters, lifeboats, a Dutch warship and other craft answered distress calls from yachts floundering in treacherous seas between Ireland and southwest England.

"The whole rescue setup is stretched to the limit," said a British Coast Guard spokesman. "Reports keep coming in of more and more yachts in trouble."

A spokesman at Shannon Air-Sea Rescue Centre in Ireland said the two unidentified bodies had been recovered from the sea and taken aboard the Dutch frigate.

The British naval air rescue station at Culdrose, England, said 19 rescued yachtsmen had made it to the base and another 20 had been picked up by various ships and were on their way there.

One of the casualties was the Irish boat Regardless, one of the race leaders, forced to retire with a snapped rudder and towed into Baltimore, County Cork. One crew member recovering from his ordeal said:

"It was all very frightening. We saw some yachts lying on their sides. Others were stern up and some gone altogether."

The 30-foot French yacht Tarantula sank in the gales, and one crew member was plucked from the sea by helicopter and taken to Culdrose suffering from hypothermia, the sometimes-fatal loss of body heat. Other crew members remained on board and were attempting to make headway under power.

The Fastnet race, renowned as one of the toughest in the world, is held every two years. Ironically, the last two races have been almost becalmed by hot and windless weather.

"If you want instant coffee, you'll have to wait!"

Roadrunners extend series

RICHMOND (CP) — Greg Jensen and Art Hazel each scored three goals Monday night as Richmond Roadrunners defeated New Westminster Salmonbellies 13-11 to stave off elimination in their Western Canada Junior Lacrosse League playoff series.

New Westminster still leads the best-of-seven semifinal 3-1.

Sambo in Olympics?

MOSCOW (AP) — Sambo, a form of wrestling combining judo, freestyle and other grappling techniques, will be proposed as an Olympic sport by the Soviet Union, Japan and Spain, the Russian national coach said Sunday.

Vladimir Volkov, who trains the Soviet sambo team, said the three countries will ask the International Olympic Committee at the next general session to add the sport to the 1980 Moscow Summer Games.

The name sambo stands for self-defence without weapons. It was developed more than 40 years ago in the Soviet Union and now has competitors on four continents.

The seven include Bill Thompson of the host club, who has won the title five times in the past nine years.

Other former champions earning berths in the championship section after qualifying rounds Sunday and Monday were Ken Newberry of Vancouver and Keith Welts, Richard Munger, Arnold Groth and Walter Daggett, all of Seattle.

Also making the championship were Ray Cranston, Jake Peters, Bill McColl and Gordon Verley of Victoria, and visitors Lloyd Murray, Herb Griswald, W.K. Hyde and Max Hunter.

A total of 230 golfers are competing in the tournament, which continues through Friday.

Koch takes sprint duel with Goehr

BERLIN (Reuter) — A fierce duel in the 200-metres between East Germany's top two women sprinters, Marita Koch and Marlies Goehr, provided the highlight on the second day of the East German track and field championships.

Koch, who holds the women's world record over this distance of 21.71 seconds, once more proved her invincibility by winning the race in 22.05. Goehr, world-record-holder in the 100-metres who had won her third straight national title at that distance the previous day, was second in 22.9.

Ruth Fuchs won the national javelin title for the 10th time since 1967.

Andrews second in rifle contest

OTTAWA (CP) — Bob Hobbs of Kamloops, captain of the British Columbia Rifle Association team, won the Gibson Challenge Cup on Monday when he shot a perfect score of 100 on the 500- and 600-metre ranges at the 97th-annual Dominion of Canada Rifle Association meet.

Eric Andrews of Victoria won the silver medal with a score of 98 points at the Connaught Ranges. Four other competitors, who also scored 98 points each, were awarded bronze medals — David Kent, Surrey, England; Pat Vamplew, Toronto; Bobby Brandt, Kingston, Jamaica, and Bob Pitcairn, Delta.

Roger Mullin of Oshawa, Ont., won the afternoon's Alexander Match with a score of 49 out of a possible 50 points on the 900-metre range.

Peter Lundgren, a member of the British cadet rifle team from Hersham, Sussex, was the runner-up with a score of 48 points. He was followed by Alvara Goviea of Kingston, Jamaica, and John Colibaba of Burnaby.

BIKE TOUR TRIUMPH

DORTMUND, West Germany (AP) — Dietrich Thurau of West Germany won the six-stage Tour of Germany cycling race Saturday.

Swim triumph

LONDON (Reuter) — The Soviet Union captured the Europa Cup men's swimming championship Sunday with an overwhelming display that gave the Russians 11 titles in 15 events.

Joe squanders chance

Opportunity knocked Monday for Joe Hudon but he failed to advantage of the invitation to gain ground on Keith Linton in the scramble for driving honors in the harnessracing meet at Sandown Raceway.

Hudon, in the runner-up position most of the time in the long-standing rivalry of reinsmen, was unable to finish among the first three in any of his three drives on Monday.

Linton, attending a funeral in Regina, missed his first card since opening day of the standardbred meet at Sandown.

Hudon's universal driving rating percentage has now dropped to .424, two points ahead of Linton, who is expected back for Thursday's card.

The largest exactor of the day came during the ninth race when Shadows Rival and runner-up Montey Bloom combined for a return of $182.70.

Terry Adams recorded the pitching victory as each team managed to connect for 10 hits.

Mike Squire tagged a homer for Lumberworld.

The final continues tonight at 6:15 and the series is expected to resume after the league all-stars return from competing as B.C. champions in the Western Canada tournament starting Friday in Lloydminster, Sask.

Before the judge

A 17-year-old described by Judge William Ostler in provincial court Monday as "drifting along from province to province . . . leaving a trail of warrants" was jailed for four months.

Darwin Charles Shaver, no fixed address, pleaded guilty Aug. 1 to breaking into the Coach and Four Restaurant, 19 Bastion Square, on July 29 and to possession of marijuana.

Owners estimated $2,000, including $485 in U.S. funds, was taken.

Shaver was remanded in custody until Monday for preparation of a presentence report and sentencing.

Court was informed Shaver was stopped at 4:15 a.m. July 31 by Victoria police and admitted the break-in. When asked about the money, of which he only had $630 left, he told officers: "Everybody in town is having a good time. There's paper everywhere."

"The boy needs some guidance," Ostler observed. "Someone to build up his self-esteem."

The judge also ordered the return of the $630 to the owners and compensation for $52 damage done to windows of the restaurant, recommended that Shaver's sentence be served in a forestry camp, and placed him on one year's probation. He levied a concurrent sentence of one week on the drug charge.

After hearing the sentence, Shaver became upset, swore, hit the docket with his hands and kicked the door leading back to the cells.

Selling $6 worth of marijuana resulted in a five-month jail sentence for 22-year-old George Hamilton August, 228 Edwards, who pleaded guilty to trafficking.

Crown counsel Martha McNeely said August was spotted in a truck selling the marijuana to a girl at 1:30 a.m. Sunday. Police found August a short time later sleeping on top of garbage cans in the 500-block Johnson. Two baggies of marijuana were found on him.

August had previous convictions for wilful damage, causing a disturbance, breaking and entering, taking an auto without the owner's consent, and possession of marijuana. The last one, for the simple possession, was May 4 this year when he was given a one-month jail term.

Ian MacDonald Ball, 23, and David Leigh Wilson, 25, both of 3178 Carrol, pleaded guilty to a joint charge of theft of a boat motor and were given one-day jail sentences and $250 fines.

Crown counsel Don Laughton told the court a $500 motor was reported missing June 13 from Michael's Quality Used Market, 303 Island Highway.

Some time later a man who recognized the motor, which was attached to a boat being hauled along the Pat Bay Highway, stopped the men who admitted the theft.

In her application for a discharge, defence lawyer Bonnie Hallas said the pair's own motor blew up and they needed one to go fishing.

A 37-year-old man was jailed 20 days after pleading guilty to his second drinking-driving conviction in less than 2½ years.

Peter Murray, 157 Gorge Road East, pleaded guilty to driving with a blood-alcohol content over .08 April 14. He was pursued and stopped after squealing tires at the corner of Highway 1A and Goldstream attracted Colwood RCMP's attention shortly before midnight. Blood-alcohol readings of .23 and .22 were obtained.

Murray was convicted Feb. 17, 1977, in Victoria for the same offence and was fined $550, Crown counsel Richard Law said.

L. Cowichan woman killed instantly

DUNCAN — Mrs. Ellen Evans, 69, of Lake Cowichan, was killed last week in two-car collision on the Cowichan Valley road.

Mrs. Evans died instantly, RCMP said, when her car was in collision with another vehicle while turning left on to the Cowichan Valley road at Tansor Road.

John Niebergall, of Lake Cowichan, driver of the other vehicle, was uninjured.

Mrs. Evans' husband received minor injuries and was treated at Cowichan District Hospital.

Mayor wins by 26 votes

MERRITT (CP) — Bob Baird, an alderman for the past six years, received 535 votes, 26 more than Ken Moyes in the two-man race for the mayor's position, left vacant June 4 by the resignation of former Merritt mayor Floyd Brown for health reasons.

'Weight of reason' winning: Campbell

Former Capital Regional Board chairman Jim Campbell said Monday he won't stoop to personal attacks in the suit the region is bringing against Saanich over the proposed Tillicum shopping centre.

He was referring to remarks made after a special council meeting at which the aldermen decided to launch a countersuit against the region.

Ald. Fred Severson said Campbell "won't sit still until he gets Saanich into court."

Mayor Mel Couvelier said Saanich was trapped in "a vicious, savage campaign by some regional board members."

Replied Campbell: "If you haven't got a very good case you attack personalities on the other side."

He said he won't get involved in that type of discussion.

"My single vote, which is all I have, against Saanich's 15 . . . I don't know why they think I'm a threat.

"It's not weight of vote, it's weight of reason that's winning the day."

Apart from the Saanich representatives, he said, the board had been unanimous with the exception of one member (Central Saanich director Dave Hill) that Saanich had erred and should be taken to court.

The board had asked Saanich for assurance the proposed Broadmead shopping centre would not be considered until the regional plan is amended. It received no such asurance.

The consensus was that legal action on Tillicum could be stalled if such assurance was given.

Last Wednesday the regional board voted 10-6 against delaying legal action until agreement has been reached on the amendments of the regional plan dealing with regional shopping centres.

Saanich and regional district planners have agreed to two pages of amendments affecting regional centres.

It was decided to have the regional planning committee, which meets Wednesday, study the amendments and have copies sent to every component of the regional district.

The regional plan calls for plans of any proposed shopping centre of more than 100,000 square feet to go before the board for approval.

The amendments agreed to by Saanich and regional district planners define centres by function rather than size. A regional centre would be one containing a major department store.

Campbell said he has never been challenged on facts and the consensus of the board is "that Saanich did something very bad (passing the Tillicum shopping centre bylaw without referral to the board)."

LITTLE GUY MAKES GOOD.

Chevy Chevette Now Canada's Best Selling Small Car.

Chevrolet is very proud to announce that in 1979* the Chevy Chevette became Canada's No. 1 small car. And for darn good reason. You see, when Chevrolet decided to build a small economy car, it drew on years and years of experience to create its design. And now, after less than 4 years, the Chevy Chevette has proven itself to be the No. 1 value car that it was designed to be. We knew you'd recognize one finely built, solid little character when you saw it.

VALUE

The Chevette has a personality just loaded with standard features. And we knew you'd welcome its low price tag. A price that includes so many features, even the competition had to sit up and take notice. Plus with three models to choose from: (a 4-door Hatchback rings in at $4,750, the 2-door Hatchback Coupe at †$4,610, and the nifty little 2-door Scooter at ‡$4,019), we knew you'd be hard pressed not to find one exactly right for your individual style.

FACTS

Now when we talk about Chevy Chevette's solid character, we're talking about a 1.6 litre engine with a 4-speed standard transmission that will give you an estimated fuel consumption/economy rating of 7.0 litres per 100 kilometres or if you prefer 40 MPG, reliable front disc/rear drum brakes, positive rack-and-pinion steering, sturdy double-panel body construction, sound-deadening acoustical treatment, body side mouldings, extensive corrosion-resistant treatments, a high energy ignition system, radial tires and believe it, even more.

COMFORTS

And when we talk about personality, the little Chevette really lets you sit back and relax. Just get behind the sports steering wheel and notice all that nice cut pile carpeting under foot. Not to mention fingertip control of turn signals, headlight dimmer, wipers, washers; AM radio, flow through ventilation, cigarette lighter and reclining bucket seats. All standard equipment.

MANOEUVREABILITY

And if you like to be close to where the action is, this little guy was built just for you. The Chevy Chevette can manoeuvre through the thick of it in comfort and style. In fact, it can turn you around almost as quickly as you can change your mind. Yes we knew it was all just a matter of time before the little Chevy Chevette would find its proper place in the sun, but that's not going to stop us from thanking you for recognizing it so soon. Get into a Chevy Chevette. Canada's No. 1 small car. It'll do you proud too.

Just as nothing has been written in 400 years to equal the dramatic and poetic writings of William Shakespeare, no music has been written in more than 300 years to surpass the beauty, majesty, good humor and pulse-quickening vitality of Johann Sebastien Bach.

And just as Shakespeare, to be appreciated fully must be spoken by actors with more than ordinary virtues, Bach's music demands of its performers gifts of a special order. Latest in the series of Victoria International Festival concerts presented Bach under just such ideal circumstances.

In a fine baroque program that paused only once to draw a romantic breath, the Bach Concerto for Oboe and Violin in D minor, and Suite for Flute and Strings in B minor provided an apropriately glowing climax.

Oboist Bert Lucarelli and violinist Daniel Heifetz formed a splendid duo in the former. The limpid brilliance of the oboe in the hands of phenomenal Lucarelli, the amazing articulation, sensitivity of inflection in phrasing and use of color, had already been revealed in a previous performance of a Handel G minor concerto.

The result becomes memorable when you add the fact Heifetz has the mastery and the flexibility to blend his vibrant gifts in a closely woven ensemble performance.

Flutist Robert Aitken, another artist who ranks with the world's greatest, took on the role of conductor for Monday's final concerto concert with the Victoria Symphony Summer Festival Orchestra.

After an uneven start the orchestra responded well in the latter half of the program. Aitken established a spirited tempo in the Vivaldi Concerto for Four Violins and Orchestra in B minor. The four violins — Yuri and Dana Mazurkevich, Heifetz and Sydney Humphreys — were a fluent quartet but the orchestra's problems in buoyancy and clean intonation were apparent.

But the strings were well up on their toes when it came to accompanying Aitken in the Bach B minor Suite. For sweetness and purity of tone, lyrical phrasing, and sheer brio in the virtuoso passages, this was magical.

The brief final movement, all spirit and dazzle, was taken at an exceptional tempo but after insistent calls for an encore, Aitken and the strings repeated the movement at an incredibly faster tempo without either flutist or orchestra losing a note.

The romantic interruption in the program was well worth having as it presented Yuri Mazurkevich in an outstanding performance of the familiar and demanding virtuoso violin piece, Saint-Saens' Introduction and Rondo Capriccioso. Mazurkevich possesses poetic insight and a fluent technical mastery in that special balance that provides a profoundly satisfying as well as a pulse-stirring performance.

The Boccerini Cello Concerto in B flat Major, brought artist student of Harvey Shapiro, Carol Morrow, to the McPherson stage. Morrow is 21 and obviously possesses an important talent that should, within a relatively short time, place her in the front rank of young concert artists.

MD prescribes morphine for addict, tells premier

VANCOUVER (CP) — A Vancouver physician has challenged the British Columbia government to take action against him over his prescription of morphine for a 28-year-old drug addict.

Dr. Robert Schulze said Monday he will give Denise Rutherford of Vancouver, a cocktail waitress, a prescription for a daily use of morphine sufficient to cope with her addition and to help her live an otherwise normal life.

Schulze said in an interview that morphine can be legally prescribed only as a pain-killer.

He said the woman came to him in a deep state of depression after a recent unsuccessful attempt to kill herself.

"She and her husband are decent, ordinary working people," said the doctor, "and it's absurd that they should be forced to mortgage themselves beyond any possibility of financial endurance to pay for this addiction.

"I'm telling the authorities I'm giving this woman a prescription of morphine tablets. She knows how to use it and her husband is totally reliable. He'll co-operate to make sure the drug is not abused."

The Rutherfords

Mrs. Rutherford said in an interview that she has been using morphine for about three years and before that was addicted to heroin.

She said the morphine cost her up to $40 a day — $20 each for two tablets — to obtain illegally, but the prescribed tablets will cost eight cents each at the drug store.

Mrs. Rutherford said she would not use methadone, a chemical substitute for heroin which is legal if prescribed by a doctor, because it is dangerous and as addictive as heroin.

The doctor said he faces possible loss of his licence because of his action, but he has notified Premier Bill Bennett, Health Minister Bob McClelland and officials of the B.C. College of Physicians and Surgeons, along with the University of B.C. pharmacy and pharmacology departments.

Mrs. Rutherford said she was feeling better Monday after being given an initial dose of morphine, adding that she had been depressed because of the stress of having to obtain morphine illegally.

Food bar too tough for 1979 soldiers

SUMMERLAND (CP) — Yesterday's soldiers marched on sheer guts and determination, eating cold beans and stale bread — today's troops seem troubled by weak teeth and sensitive palates.

The federal agriculture research station here developed the bars of dehydrated fruit, meat and cheese, but Armed Forces brass turned thumbs down.

The soldiers found the bars too tough to chew and didn't like some of the flavors.

The bars, ranging from 200 to 300 calories, were developed by the food section at the research station after the army requested a survival ration that would double as a trail pack.

"They are low weight and have a shelf life of five years," said Dugal MacGregor, a microbiologist who worked on the project.

"We came up with a pure apple, apple-bread, raspberry-apple, apricot, cheese, cheese-bread, turkey-cranberry, pork-applesauce, about seven basic ones all told," he said.

The forces struck a taste panel and found the troops didn't like the taste of the cheese or chicken bar, and found the apple flat.

Doukhobor women stage protest rally

NELSON (CP) — About 70 women, members of the reformed Sons of Freedom Doukhobor sect, held a rally here Monday demanding that the provincial government and RCMP stop "acts of violence" against their leader, Stefan Sorokin.

The demonstration, held in front of the provincial courthouse and the RCMP regional headquarters, followed an incident Saturday in which 10 persons were arrested in front of Sorokin's home in nearby Krestova.

The ten, who are members of the Sons of Freedom sect, were charged during the weekend with mischief and were being held in custody at the RCMP detachment. A police spokesman refused to give details surrounding the arrests.

Sorokin heads the Christian Community and Brotherhood of Reformed Doukhobors.

One demonstrator said in an interview that "the people who follow Mr. Sorokin are against violence. He doesn't want burning or bombing."

4th straight dip in jobless total

However, these countries keep their unemployment rates artificially low by giving workers long paid vacations during slack periods and by bringing in temporary immigrant labor during peak work periods.

Last month's total of 10.8 million working Canadians was the largest ever recorded. During the preceding year, 367,000 new jobs were created.

At the same time, the working-age population has been growing almost as quickly as the number of new jobs, keeping the unemployment rate above seven per cent.

Today's good news about the job situation comes in an atmosphere of increasing gloom about the economy. The Conference Board in Canada, an influential private economic forecasting organization predicted Monday that the year-end unemployment rate will be 7.9 per cent and this will increase to 8.2 per cent next year.

The worsening of economic prospects will follow the decline which has already become evident in the U.S. economy.

There have already been lay-offs in the automotive industry and more are predicted. These will begin showing up in the August unemployment figures, which will be made public a month from now.

Other province-by-province unemployment rates for July were:

— Newfoundland 14.4 per cent compared with 15.5 per cent last month.

— Prince Edward Island 10.7 per cent compared with 11.4 per cent last month.

— Nova Scotia 9.5 per cent compared with 9.0 per cent last month.

— New Brunswick 11.2 per cent compared with 10.8 per cent last month.

— Quebec 8.8 per cent compared with 9.5 per cent last month.

— Ontario 6.6 per cent compared with 6.5 per cent last month.

— Manitoba 5.5 per cent compared with 5.3 per cent last month.

— Saskatchewan 3.7 per cent compared with 3.9 per cent last month.

— Alberta 3.6 per cent compared with 4.1 per cent last month.

Figures are not compiled for the Yukon or Northwest Territories.

Among the major metropolitan areas for which Statistics Canada provides information, the highest July unemployment rate was in London, Ont., at 12.8 per cent. The lowest was Edmonton's 3.2 per cent.

Figures for other cities included: St. John's, Nfld., 12.1 per cent; Halifax, 7.6 per cent; Montreal, 7.7 per cent; Ottawa-Hull, 8.2 per cent; Toronto, 5.0 per cent; Hamilton, 6.3 per cent; Winnipeg, 5.6 per cent; Regina, 4.4 per cent; Calgary, 4.4 per cent and Vancouver 6.9 per cent.

Lauk 'depression' gives prof chuckle

A provincial politician's dire prediction of a major depression in B.C. early next decade because of soaring oil price increases is nonsense, a University of Victoria economics professor said today.

Dr. Leonard Laudadio, chairman of the university's economics department, was commenting in an interview on a speech last weekend by Gary Lauk (NDP-Vancouver Centre).

Lauk is reported to have told the annual convention of the B.C. Young New Democrats in Vancouver that continuing oil price increases plus massive public and private debt will send unemployment soaring and land values plummeting.

"We are facing something pretty serious," said Lauk. "The free market system is hitting a reef.

"We owe 10 times what we own."

Lauk, minister of mines in the NDP government from 1972-75, said a recession sparked by higher energy costs will cause unemployment to exceed 14 per cent and the recession will turn into a depression when unemployment forces homeowners to turn over heavily-mortgaged property to banks and mortgage companies, forcing down land prices.

"It's a silly forecast," Laudadio said.

He said it is irresponsible for Lauk to make such a long-range forecast which is likely based on very little economic information.

"It's a politician's forecast not an economic forecast."

Laudadio, who teaches a course in environmental economics, said he doesn't see the price of oil going up as much in the next 10 years as it has in the past decade.

He said the world price of oil has gone up nearly 11 times what it was seven years ago but that is not likely to happen again.

People will find other energy alternatives and just cut down on their consumption, Laudadio said.

He said Lauk is right that if the oil price did continue to increase at the same rate there will be a recession. But how does he know that is going to happen? he added.

Lauk said a depression will first happen in the U.S., but eventually will drag down Canada, although B.C. will stave off a recession for a short time because of a healthy forest industry.

The MLA said governments must redirect more investment in rapid transit because of fuel costs.

Jack Munro, regional president of the International Woodworkers of America, urged the young NDPs to encourage closer co-operation between the labor movement and the NDP.

No word on talks with Chevron

VANCOUVER (CP) — Contract Talks between Chevron Canada and 25 striking Teamsters truck drivers were adjourned Monday, but neither side would indicate how talks were progressing or when discussions would resume.

Chevron truck drivers and Teamsters members at Imperial Oil walked off the job Aug. 2, two days after 125 members at at Gulf Canada went on strike, to back contract demands.

The 55 Imperial drivers reached a tentative agreement with the company last week and negotiators for Chevron and Gulf had hoped to use that agreement as a basis for settling with their employees. The Imperial workers will vote on the undisclosed agreement later this week.

The union had demanded increases of $2.12 an hour on a base rate of $8.72.

Meanwhile, the B.C. Ferries Corp., which has been affected by the strike, said Monday it has received a 400,000-gallon shipment of diesel fuel from B.C. Hydro.

However, Betty Nicholson, corporation spokesman, said more fuel must be secured if the ferries are to continue running longer than later this week.

She said the corporation will seek fuel from alternative suppliers if the strike at the three companies continues.

The strike has resulted in shortages of diesel fuel and marine gasoline in some areas, but deliveries to service stations by supervisory personnel have prevented gasoline shortages for motorists.

Crewman airlifted

A 50-year-old Chinese crewman from the freighter Francis Sincere was flown from his ship 100 miles west of Tofino today and taken to Vanouver General Hospital.

The airlift was carried out by a Labrador helicopter from CFB Comox.

She slipped $1M under pillow

'One of us might be a millionaire' the lady said as they drove around the city

John and Patricia Ganas . . . it started with a $30,000 win in Monte Carlo

By AB KENT
Times Staff

Will success rock John Ganas?

Not unless he and his wife Patricia give up their tactics.

She's the one who put both their names on a Loto Canada ticket which made them the country's newest instant millionaires last week.

"It was her ticket," the 65-year-old corporate secretary said in an interview before going house-hunting in Oak Bay.

"I am lucky," his wife admitted, fingering a gold charm bracelet with a four-leaf clover and a horseshoed 13. "I'm very superstitious and I'm very optimistic."

She mentioned her Irish father's influence.

Her luck started years ago when she won $30,000 at Monte Carlo.

The Montrealers were here on holiday when they found out their lottery ticket had paid off.

But after a brief spell of hysteria and a sleepless night, and with the money in the bank, they settled down under a cloak of serenity to view their good fortune with a certain objectivity.

It's not going to change their lifestyle, they insist, except for an earlier retirement for both.

How did they get the news of their big win?

Ganas said he and his wife were with a friend driving around Victoria for a last look before going back east, holiday over. Each had an interest in the draw which had already been held.

Their friend said: "Here we are, all holding tickets on Loto Canada and one of us might be a millionaire."

Intrigued, they made inquiries. They learned the delirious news by phone and went through a frenzied few minutes.

Mrs. Ganas screamed: "We've won a million."

Ganas nearly let go of the drink he was pouring.

"It was a little emotional, if you can picture the scene," he said.

Then they were en route to Vancouver to visit their son Bill.

"I took the ticket and slept on it under my pillow to make sure it wouldn't fade away," Mrs. Ganas said.

On Tuesday, after the B.C. Day holiday, they took their ticket to the regional lottery office. A courier took it to Ottawa for verification and brought back the $1 million cheque Thursday.

Since their win was confirmed, Mrs. Ganas quit her job as a ward secretary in Montreal Jewish General Hospital and her husband gave notice he will leave his post as assistant to the chairman of Steinberg Inc. by the end of October.

Ganas described phoning to tell his boss about the million, just as he got home from a football game.

"I told him I would like to negotiate a permanent retirement no later than the end of October. He laughed like hell.

"He understood. Why should I work? I'm 65 and was planning retirement anyway."

His wife was more definite. Her boss agreed also with her decision to quit and can hardly wait for her to get back to Montreal so the hospital group that sold her the ticket can claim a vendor's prize. But the Jewish hospital will retain her interest and support.

Part of her winnings will buy patients a new renal dialysis machine.

A larger chunk will go to purchase their retirement home, which they decided will be in Oak Bay.

"I want to be close to the water. I've already put my feet in," Mrs. Ganas said.

There'll be no more apartment living for them.

"I want my own little bungalow where I can have my own washer and dryer," Mrs. Ganas said.

Winning is a habit for her.

"She plays the football pools," her husband said.

"A pound a week for 30 years," she added. " Sometimes I break even, sometimes I'm ahead. I won $900 on them last year. I bought Loto tickets and won $1,800."

"That's how we came out here on holiday last year," Ganas said.

And just for good measure this time, Mrs. Ganas also won two $100 prizes with her Loto Canada tickets.

They want to be settled in by winter and look forward to being with their three grown children.

"We expect to have them all home (in Oak Bay) for Christmas."

Later, Ganas said, they hope to travel. They want to see the U.S. west coast, Hawaii and perhaps Australia, where friends live.

And they will keep buying lottery tickets "because we know a good portion of the money helps developing athletes. We don't expect to win again," Ganas said.

TOWN TALK

A radar check of West Saanich Road, prompted by a five-hour roadblock by the Patricia Bay Indian Band last week, netted 32 speeders the day after the protest.

Staff-Sgt. George Whittaker says the number of violators caught dropped to 15 the second day and 10 the third day.

The blockade was staged to force better traffic control along a section of road that crosses the band's land along the north edge of Patricia Bay.

Your telephone company wants you to make more long distance calls — hopefully 2¾ million between Sept. 21 and Nov. 30.

That's how many long distance connections would result if every home subscriber placed three calls, the number required to be eligible for B.C. Tel's R-r-ringo contest.

Prizes offered in the 10-week period are five first class Air Canada round trip tickets for two, plus $2,000 in traveller's cheques.

"R-r-ringo is part of the company's promotions program to compete for the consumer's dollar and encourage efficient use of the telephone network by stimulating residential calling, especially in off-peak hours," said Jim MacInnes, marketing vice-president.

Entry forms go out with the September billing.

Nurses join union to get more clout

Registered nurses at Gorge Road Hospital have joined the Hospital Employees Union in an effort to get, among other things, more bargaining clout than they have under their own professional organization.

The decision to join the 22,000-member HEU was made at a meeting last Thursday and union secretary-business manager Jack Gerow said HEU applied to the Labor Relations Board for certification on Friday.

There is no indication how long it will take the board to make a decision on the certification bid. About 70 nurses are involved.

The move by the Gorge Road hospital is a first for the Victoria area and is seen by some as a possible indicator of a trend by nurses in other B.C. hospitals to opt for a union that would give them more muscle at a time when they are complaining of staff shortages and poor working conditions.

Gerow would not comment in any detail on the Gorge Road nurses' move because the matter is before the LRB.

However, he said the precedent for HEU representing registered nurses has been set. The union already represents graduate nurses and registerd nurses in the Lower Mainland, he said.

Sources indicated the reasons for the nurses action at the Gorge Road hospital centre around their concern about nursing care and staff shortages as well as a desire for a better contract.

The nurses feel the Registered Nurses Association of B.C., although serving a role in the education and discipline of nurses, is not doing a job in the labor relations field.

Excrement mailed to city doctor in bitter row among B.C. medics

A bitter battle within the establishment of the B.C. medical profession has degenerated into a campaign which has seen former Canadian Medical Association head Dr. Peter Banks sent human excrement in the mail.

An as yet unnamed Burnaby doctor mailed the feces to the Victoria physician as part of a hate mail campaign that has grown from a long-standing internal feud within the B.C. Medical Association.

Sources in Vancouver say the incident is described in a front page story of the BCMA's newspaper to be distributed Wednesday.

Banks refused to comment, saying: "It won't do the profession any good."

Banks seconded the nomination of Dr. Bill Thomas for the president-elect of the Canadian Medical Association after another B.C. doctor had earlier been chosen to be B.C.'s nominee.

B.C. will host the CMA's annual convention in 1980.

It has been the tradition of the 107-year-old association that it elect its president from the province designated to hold the next convention.

Therefore at this year's convention in June in Toronto, tradition would dictate a B.C. doctor be the CMA's president-elect for the 1980 convention in Vancouver.

By an earlier mail-in ballot, B.C.'s physicians selected Dr. William Jory of North Vancouver as B.C.'s nominee at the national convention.

In ordinary circumstances, Jory would have been unopposed and therefore automatically chosen president for 1980.

But delegates from other provinces felt Jory, well-known as a member of B.C.'s so-called reform group, would not be a good choice for national president.

BANKS
. . . seconded nomination

During backroom discussions at the Toronto convention, many delegates agreed another representative would have to be elected president.

And since by tradition the president would be a B.C. doctor, Thomas, a moderate Vancouver physician, was asked if he would stand against Jory as a nominee from the floor.

He agreed and was nominated by a Saskatchewan physician.

Banks, a past president of the BCMA as well as the joint Canadian and British Medical Associations, seconded the nomination.

Banks and Thomas are within a medical faction which advocates discussions and negotiations with governments over fee schedules while Jory and his supporters advocate confrontation strategy in dealing with governments.

Jory, who is also a past president of the BCMA, was defeated by Thomas 126 votes to 47 for the national presidency.

The last time a nominee from the floor defeated the chosen nominee was in 1963.

Sources in the BCMA suggest Jory's unpopularity could also be connected with his unsuccessful move at last year's convention to be elected from the floor as chairman of the CMA's board of directors.

In seeking nomination from the floor, he went against a long-standing tradition where the board chairman's election is simply an endorsement.

So his defeat for CMA president at the hands of a nominee from the floor this year was a taste of his own medicine, the source suggested.

New tilt Thursday in battle for Daisy

The second round in the battle over ownership of Daisy the red-headed Amazon parrot will take place Thursday in county court here.

Erika Gidden, 1039 Linden, Monday asked for a new order after a technical defeat last week when an application was rejected for an interim order for possession of Daisy pending the outcome of the lawsuit.

Her motion, filed by lawyer Harold Turnham at the Law Courts, asks the court to grant an order that the defendants Allan and Stacy Sproule, 2813 Blackwood, "preserve that red-headed Amazon parrot named Daisy."

The motion asks that the defendants be ordered not to sell, lease, encumber or in any way dispose of the bird pending the trial. It also asks for an order that the defendants notify Mrs. Gidden's solicitors within three days if there is any change in the location at which the parrot is being kept.

Mrs. Gidden said in an affidavit that she turned Daisy over to Coral Sands Pet Shop manager Ruth Beauchamp last October asking to board it until she could find a place where she and her pet could live.

But Mrs. Beauchamp, in her affidavit, said Mrs. Gidden gave no explanation for the boarding or how long it would last.

Daisy, according to her, was bothered by other birds at the shop so she sub-boarded the bird with Mrs. Sproule, who in her affidavit said she knew then Daisy didn't belong to her and she was prepared to return it.

Mrs. Sproule said she was phoned in May by a woman who said she owned Daisy and who immediately offered to sell the parrot to her for $500. Mrs. Sproule said she accepted and made arrangements to borrow $500 from Mrs. Beauchamp.

But Mrs. Gidden said she asked the Sproules to return the parrot and while Mrs. Sproule inquired about purchasing Daisy no agreement was reached.

Mrs. Gidden said Daisy hasn't been returned to her but belongs to her. Mrs. Sproule said she is in lawful possession of Daisy because of a contract of sale between her and Mrs. Gidden.

Pedens return to roots

ALEXANDER PEDEN
. . . around the Horn

Elizabeth Forbes

Descendants of Alexander Peden, who came here in the early 1880s, will converge on Victoria this weekend from Chicago, the states of Hawaii, Idaho, Oregon, Texas and Washington, and from Montreal, Alberta and Saskatchewan.

They will come by air, rail, sea and road to join relatives in this city for a first-ever reunion.

Its a three-day gathering — Aug. 17-19.

An informal get-together with registration of all those present has been arranged for Friday and a reunion dinner on Saturday, both in the University of Victoria Commons Block.

Sunday there will be a family picnic at Centennial Park in Central Saanich where it is expected about 100 will attend.

Robert Peden, a second-generation descendent and a former Esquimalt alderman, is chairman of the local reunion committee.

It was in 1882 that Alexander Peden left Prestonpans on the Firth of Forth in Scotland, to travel in his own boat by way of the Cape of Good Hope, the south Atlantic, around the Horn and to Victoria.

He belonged to the Plymouth Brethren and the boat was named Pilgrim Progress.

By 1884, he was sure this was the place he wanted to live so he returned to Scotland to bring his family here.

Six years later, in 1888, they started out, Alexander, his wife Mary and eight children, Mary, William, Alexander, Elizabeth, Robert, Janet, Margaret and Thomas, then two years old.

They crossed to Montreal by ship and came on to Port Moody in a CPR colonist car in which they slept and did their own cooking.

The railway ended at Port Moody in those days, so the trip into Granville (now Vancouver) was made by horse and buggy.

There they boarded an early coastal steamer for Victoria.

The family home was in James Bay on San Jose Street and there a ninth child, John, was born.

Peden built a fish cannery on the Nass River and for several years fished the coast of British Columbia himself for that cannery.

When he was home in Victoria his boat was moored in a slough where the Empress Hotel stands today.

He died in 1907 and is buried in Ross Bay Cemetery beside his wife, who predeceased him in 1898.

The five Peden boys grew to manhood in this city and all were successful in business, in service work and in public life.

Bill and Johnny opened Scott and Peden Feed Store (now Buckerfields) at the foot of Pandora.

Bob and Tommy owned Peden Brothers Bicycle Shop, originally on Yates and later on Douglas, where it eventually was acquired by the McConnell family and became Victoria Sporting Goods.

Alex started as a tailor, later joined a life insurance company and went into public life as an alderman for the city of Victoria.

As young men all five brothers were active in sports, especially soccer and basketball, and their names were recorded on many championship trophies.

Tommy is also remembered as one of the first to go in for bicycle riding in this area.

Two of the four girls, Janet and Margaret, died in their youth.

Mary married Tom Moffat, an engineer and later a superintendant with the CPR coastal service between Victoria and Vancouver. Elizabeth, a music teacher, became the wife of a man named William Allan.

Turning briefly to descendents of that first Peden family there is the same pattern of success.

Torchy and Doug, sons of Bill Peden, gained fame as world champion bicycle racers.

Doug, an all-round athlete (and now sports editor of the Times) was recently named to Canada's Sports Hall of Fame.

Eleanor and Mary, daughters of Bill and Tommy Peden, respectively, played on a Gainers Basketball team when it challenged the Edmonton Grads and, in 1949, with a C & C Taxi team that won the Canadian championship.

Today, Mary Casilio is an alderman and ombudsman for the municipality of Saanich and Eleanor Sowerby is an alderman in Sidney.

There are other descendents in this vicinity who have equally interesting success stories. And there is no doubt during the reunion many more will be uncovered and recorded.

Postscript — Any friends wishing to attend the Peden reunion dinner or the picnic are asked to telephone 592-6819 or 477-9286.

Architects of Rome help us save energy

By LeROY POPE

NEW YORK (UPI) — The growing energy problem could bring about a renaissance of the Roman-style atrium principle in homes and commercial buildings.

The atrium itself — the court in the centre of the building open to the sun — is basic to Spanish and much other Mediterranean architecture.

But the modern return to the atrium principle generally will involve increasing use of the skylight to cut down on window surface and to save energy used in lighting as well as for heating, says the Architectural Aluminum Manufacturers Association.

This burgeoning trend is a curious reversal of thinking, the association said. "As recently as the early 1970s, government regulatory agencies and government-endorsed industry regulatory bodies were contending that the skylight was an energy waster."

Perhaps it was when it was used mainly to cap an air shaft and let in a little dim light for inside windows in a factory or tenement building.

But the electronic computer has been used in the last few years by building groups and architects to test the potential of the skylight with some surprising results.

For example, the computer projected that a typical one-story factory in Jacksonville, Fla., could save $35,000 a year in electric power cost by having 3.6 per cent of its roof area devoted to skylights.

This projection was for a building 850 feet long, 316 feet wide and 55 feet in height. Each square foot of skylight, the computer said, would save $4 worth of energy a year compared with the surrounding insulated opaque roof. This saving is from combined heating and air conditioning costs.

The computer said a comparable skylight in a similar building in the latitude of Boston would save $13,500 a year. The big difference, of course, is that Jacksonville gets a lot more sunshine.

John Wolf, president of the Architectural Aluminum Manufacturers Association, said, "The potential energy savings by judicious use of skylights could be astronomic."

Putting big skylights in modern, wide-span, one-floor factories is easy from the standpoint of architectural design but how do you go about putting them in homes?

"Actually, skylights already have begun to make a significant impact in home construction," Wolf said. "One of our building contractor members predicts that within a few years all newly built homes will have two to three skylights for every 10 windows."

While the energy savings of skylights are not nearly so dramatic in homes as in factories, Wolf said, architects and homeowners also are attracted by the pleasing lighting effects that can be created by the judicious placing of skylights.

However, he predicted, architects increasingly will target on skylight use in the home to save on the cost of heating and air conditioning as well as to provide a light, airy environment.

"Skylights always have been retro-fitted into old houses and store and office buildings to some extent," Wolf said, "and our members say orders for such installations have doubled in the past two years."

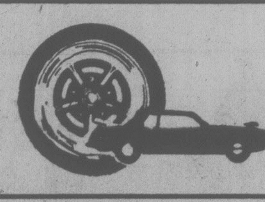
Hot tub users warned

ENTURA, Calif. (UPI) — An association of manufacturers of hot tubs is warning users against using alcohol or drugs while simmering, citing the case of an inebriated couple who died in their hot tub.

Art Park, president of the International Tub and Spa Institute, said the institute was considering such a warning even before the report.

His comments followed a report by the Ventura County Coroner's office on the deaths of a retired navy officer, Wesley La Roza, 58, and his wife, Helen, 53. They were found dead in their tub May 15.

Authorities reported at first that they simmered to death, but on Monday the coroner said they died of heat stroke complicated by alcohol and heart disease.



WHEELS

by Mike Lamm

DEAR MIKE: I purchased a new Chevrolet Citation in May. This car has the 2.5-litre Four. When the car recently reached its first 3,000 miles, I wanted to change the oil and filter. But when I climbed underneath, I found that the filter is in a position that makes it impossible to twist. I went ahead and changed the oil but left the filter for my 6,000-mile trip to the dealer. Is there any was a home mechanic can change the oil filter on one of these cars? — HERE'S HOPING

DEAR HOPING: Yes, Chevrolet markets a special filter wrench for the 4-cylinder Citation. Check your dealer's part department. I suspect that similar wrenches will soon be available on the aftermarket and that Chevrolet will probably change the filter's location in future Citations.

★ ★ ★

DEAR MIKE: My 1968 Buick Electra drinks about half a cup of radiator fluid every few days. When the radiator gets low, the top hose collapses. All hoses are new. I can't figure out where the radiator fluid goes. There's no puddle on the garage floor, no water in the crankcase nor automatic transmission. What's going on? — BAFFLED

DEAR BAFFLED: I suspect a tiny, one-way, high-pressure leak somewhere in the cooling system. What must be happening: Fluid is being forced out but air can't come back in — perhaps because the collapsing hose seals off the leak at a certain point. Even after you trace and fix the leak, you'll do well to invest in a wire-reinforced upper hose.

★ ★ ★

DEAR MIKE: I have a chirping noise under the hood of my 1970 Monte Carlo. All fanbelts have been replaced — power steering belt, air-conditoner belt, alternator belt. Same noise. I think the mechanic is trying to make some money off me. What could be the cause of this chirping? — CRICKET

DEAR CRICKET: Anything that reciprocates can chirp. New belts in old pulleys often still make noise. Begin by applying belt dressing to all belts (or use a crayon). If that doesn't do it, take a two-foot length of garden hose and use it as a stethoscope. with the engine running, listen to everything that revolves, one unit at a time. You can pinpoint the chirp that way.

WIN! $1,000.00 IN CASH PRIZES EVERY OTHER WEEK!

WIN! GRAND PRIZE TRIP FOR TWO TO HAWAII, By Wardair

The object is to match the official letters published every day with the letters in the grid which you have filled in with your name (see samples 1 and 2). When you have circled a row of letters across, vertically, or diagonally either way, send your entry in for the bi-weekly draw for cash prizes. You may submit as many entries as you wish per game, but each must be in a separate envelope.

THE NAME GAME
Rules and Procedures

Object of "The Name Game": To become eligible for prize drawings by matching letters of the alphabet, published in the Victoria Times and The Daily Colonist, with the letters in your name. Each game starts with a Saturday Times and ends in the Sunday Colonist two weeks later. The official entry form will be published every day. All members of a family may play. There is no age limit. You may enter more than once but only one entry per envelope may be submitted. As each game ends, you are invited to play the next game.

1. Using the official entry form or a reasonably hand-drawn facsimile (no mechanically reproduced forms accepted), start at the upper left hand corner and print your name continuously, one letter in each square, until all the squares are filled in. (For example, if your name is John Anderson, Sample 1 shows how to fill out your entry form.) Do not include punctuation.
Use your legal name, in a form which can be verified on your driver's licence, social security card or other official identification. You may use various forms of your first name (e.g. John, Jonathan or John S.), as long as your identity can be verified. No nicknames, please.
2. Letters for the Name Game will be published as follows: 4 letters Saturday Times and Sundey Colonist and 3 letters daily. When an official letter matches one in your diagram, circle it on your entry. That letter may appear in more than one square on your diagram, but you may circle only one such letter (of your choice) each time. Since individual letters are selected at random, they may appear more than once — even on the same day. You may circle one such letter as many times as that letter is published. The same letters will be published in the Victoria Times and The Daily Colonist, but may only be used once in any one entry.
3. When you match enough letters to complete one row on your diagram — horizontal, vertical or diagonal (corner to corner), as in Sample 2, you are eligible for the prize drawings for that game. Drawings for 15 prizes will be held every other week for 10 weeks. At each drawing $500 goes to the first name drawn, $100 to the next —, $50 each to the next 3, and $25 for the last 10 — (Winners must answer a time-limited skill-testing question before collecting prizes.) All names drawn will be returned to the drum for the grand prize drawing.
4. Mail your completed entry form to: The Name Game, Victoria Press, P.O. Box 1390, Victoria, B.C. V8W 3C4; postmarked no later than the Monday following the end of that game. Completed entries may also be delivered, in a sealed envelope, to Victoria Press, no later than Tuesday, the following day. The game number (such as 'Game 1', 'Game 2', etc.) must appear at the lower left-hand corner of the envelope.
5. All entries will be placed in a container and the winning entries will be drawn at random. Winners will be announced in the Colonist and Times on the Friday following the close of each game. The odds of winning will depend on the number of eligible entries received.
6. It is not necessary to buy the Times or Colonist to participate. Copies of the newspaper may be inspected free of charge at the newspaper's offices during regular business hours. Sorry, official letters will not be given over the phone.
7. Employees of the newspapers and members of their immediate families are not eligible to participate. Unclaimed or invalidly claimed prizes will be donated to a recognized charity at the close of the contest.
8. Winners agree to allow publication of their names, pictures and publicity in the Times and Colonist without additional consideration. Submission of an entry indicates acceptance of all game rules.

YOUTH CLINIC

Young readers' questions on human relations and sex are answered by a panel of experts: Marion Powell, medical doctor; Graham Cotter, clergyman; Dr. Saul Levine, psychiatrist, and Bruce Vichert, social worker.

Moles seem like mountains

DEAR DR. POWELL: I am 15 years old and every time I put on a bathing suit I am almost overcome with embarrassment because I have a number of moles on my stomach and back. I have actually turned down invitations from my friends to swim in their pools. I have asked my family doctor to remove the moles but he wouldn't because he didn't think it necessary. Could you please tell me where I can go to have them removed? I am getting desperate, I even tried to remove them with a razor once.

ANSWER: Moles can be disfiguring and if they are interfering with your life you should talk seriously to your family doctor again. Ask him to refer you to a dermatologist for a second opinion.

Stop and ask yourself if you are allowing the moles to become too important and to become an excuse for not accepting invitations to go swimming. You can always wear a one-piece bathing suit that will cover up many of the moles.

Do not make any further attempts to remove them yourself. This can be very dangerous as well as very painful.

DEAR MR. VICHERT: I'm a 14-year-old girl. I've recently gone out with one of the boys in my school. Both of us still do drugs (grass, hash). Our relationship was in good condition until I told him that a year ago I was addicted to speed. He decided to break off, giving me the reasons that I am too independent and that he couldn't handle my problem with speed.

How can I get through to him that my problem with speed is over and done with, and that I am independent because I always seem to get hurt when I depend on someone.

This is not the first time I have had a relationship end up this way. Is there something wrong with telling someone the truth about yourself?

ANSWER: I am sure that it seems unfair to be told that your relationship must end for a reason that is no longer valid. Since you no longer have a problem with speed, and I am sure that you are pleased that you have been able to overcome that problem, I wonder if your boyfriend is using that and what he claims is your "independence" as an excuse to end a relationship that he is not able to continue.

Try to understand that he also may have problems, some of which are probably emotional and therefore not as visible, and it may be difficult for him to have a steady relationship. It takes a lot of energy to work on one's own problems and he may feel at this time that that is where he wants to put all his efforts.

I would suggest that you try and be helpful and friendly, but go slowly as you both put your energy and efforts into overcoming those difficulties that could be interfering with either of you having a full relationship.

There is nothing wrong with telling the truth about yourself, but it is important to have enough understanding to know when another person is ready to hear the truth.

DEAR DR. LEVINE: I am 12 years old and in Grade 6. I am flat and sort of ugly. All the boys call me dog and make fun of me. I am not smart and I go through torture. I try to act myself and be nice but they still make fun of me. They really bother me and I hold back the tears. Everyone tells me it is just a phase I'm going through, but they don't do it to any one else. What's wrong with me?

ANSWER: I feel sorry for you. Some kids (and adults) can be extremely cruel. Some even look for an underdog, someone who is having difficulty, and go out of their way to make him or her miserable. Frankly, there is little that you can do about those particular kinds of nasties.

You have to cultivate your own close friends, and in a sense be "above" the obnoxious kids.

You say that you hold back your tears. Is that because you don't want to give them the satisfaction of making you cry? Or do you think that you'd be humiliated? Sometimes acting honestly is very disarming. Some insensitive kids may pull back if they realize that they are hurting you.

You are only 12. Your body, face and personality has a lot of changes in store for you over the next few years. Don't conclude just yet that you are ugly, or not smart.

Tell yourself that someday those miserable kids will eat their words. Your motto (to yourself) should be "I'll show them!"

If all this fails, visit a teen drop-in centre, or youth clinic, to speak to a professional counsellor. Take heart — you will show them!

* * *

DEAR DR. COTTER: I am a 16-year-old who goes to church every Sunday with my family but I haven't got much faith. What makes everyone so sure there was a Jesus? What about Budd- hism, Hinduism or Moslem religions? Why don't you believe in them? Please tell me what's what.

ANSWER: There are some people who think that to believe in your own faith you must violently disbelieve in other people's. I am not one of those, and you don't have to be. The historical existence of Jesus is as well attested to as that of Gautama (Buddhism) and Mohammed (Moslem religion). It is what we believe about the indentity of Jesus that is the basis of our faith.

It is good that you have an enquiring mind. Don't accept second-hand information if you can get closer to sources. And try to investigate what it is that you yourself live by. In other words, look at your own sense of identity as well as the identity of the founders of religious faiths.

Dogs, cats like it to keep cool too

While pet owners try to stay cool during the hot, humid summer, they often forget that their dogs and cats need special attention to cope with sultry weather conditions.

Pet owners must never take a dog of any age on a long run in hot weather because heat stroke is a canine killer, says Dr. Michael Fox, auther of two pet care booklets.

Always park in the shade and keep the windows open when you leave the pet inside the car, Fox also advises.

Research studies have shown that the temperature inside a parked car on a 30° C.(85° F.) day will reach 39°C.(102° F.) in 10 minutes, even in the shade.

Should your pet for any reason be overcome by heat exhaustion, apply cold water or ice to the pet and rush it to the nearest veterinarian

Those stiletto heels are killer shoes

TORONTO (CP) — Men may like her motion but the woman in the stiletto heels could be spending her next date with a bone surgeon.

She's wearing what foot doctors might call killer shoes — those delicate, pointy-toed, stiletto-heeled shoes that shift the centre of gravity from where nature intended it to be.

Doctors report that by wearing such shoes, more women are disabling themselves, some permanently, and more are seeking treatment and relief.

Sheldon Freelan, president of the Canadian Podiatry Association, said in an interview that up to half the population have structural weaknesses in the feet, making them vulnerable to injury.

Dr. Lorne Greenspan, who works in the emergency department of the Toronto General Hospital, said he has noticed a significant increase in the number of patients treated for injuries from falling off high heels.

Some even turn up in wedding dresses, having had one too many at their reception, or still breathless from boogying at their favorite disco.

Their injuries are similar to those suffered by professional dancers or athletes, Greenspan said — simple sprains and what Greenspan calls dancers' or disco fracture in the small-toe area.

Dr. Adrian Grice, a chiropractor for 20 years, said stress from wearing high heels can eventually cause arthritic problems.

He warns that continued wearing can cause problems in the sacroiliac — the lower back — and pains there can eventually radiate through the thigh and as far down as the heel.

"That's why there are a lot of 45-year-old women wearing nurses' shoes."

Dr. Hugh Cameron, orthopedic surgeon at Toronto General, said high heels also overload pressure on the forefoot. Pressure on the ball of the foot is three times greater in high heels than in flats, he said.

This condition is worsened because the lining of women's shoes is smooth and the foot slips farther into the cramped toe area so that the toes stop functioning.

Cameron said women in heels often tilt forward because they have to walk with bent knees if they're not used to walking at that height.

This can cause excess pressure on the back of the kneecap and eventual complications.

Most of Cameron's patients are women in the 50s because it takes 15 to 20 years of steady wearing before surgery is required.

Many lucky fishermen like to freeze their catch in a block of ice to maintain fish moisture. But blocks of ice take too much freezer space. Glazing fish doesn't. Place fish fillets on a cookie sheet and freeze solid. Remove one fillet from freezer and dip in ice-cold water to form a glaze. Continue freezing and dipping to build up a thick glaze before wrapping for freezer storage.

Don't toss out a spring-summer mail-order catalogue even if you've received a fall-winter one. Old catalogue prices are usually effective for weeks to come. Compare prices for the same item (home furnishings, kitchen wares, etc., don't vary in selection as much as seasonal clothing) to see which catalogue has the best price.

Balloons land trio new bikes

TORONTO (CP) — Three youngsters collected new bicycles recently after placing in the top three spots of the Inter City Angels balloon race.

Colleen Irish came first after the balloon she launched, tagged with her name, travelled 933 kilometres to Charlotte, N.C. Sebastian Spataro was second, sending his balloon 930 km. to Bowling Green, Ky., and Rosanne Atherley was third after her balloon went 880 km. to Wilson, N.C.

The Angels is a non-profit group which provides arts programs in schools to Toronto children.

Taking risk has its reward

Dear Abby

by Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: From time to time you print a letter from a woman asking if she should reveal to her fiance that she isn't a virgin. I say, take the risk and tell him. If he drops her, it will hurt, but she will be spared a difficult marriage. A man who is rigid on virginity is bound to have rigid attitudes about everything else. If he feels he must have a perfect bride, will he settle for less than a perfect wife?

I had an abortion at age 18. In subsequent years there were other boyfriends. The ones I wanted to marry, I told. It seemed I was always saying goodbye until finally a man came along who said, "Forget it. The past doesn't matter. As far as I'm concerned, our lives began the day we met."

This man was worth the wait. We've been married for 25 years and I have never known the fear of wondering what my husband would do when he found out I wasn't perfect; he's known all along.

Acceptance "as is" is the most beautiful compliment a man can give his wife. It's wonderful to know that one doesn't have to be perfect to be loved.

HAPPY "AS IS"

DEAR HAPPY: One who is loved has probably earned it. Congratulations.

DEAR ABBY: My boyfriend and I decided to get married. I suggested asking a woman judge, but my boyfriend objected. He said he wouldn't feel "married" if a woman performed the ceremony. What is your opinion?

NO SIG

DEAR NO: Your boyfriend is afflicted with a bad case of old-fashioned gender bias. I hope for your sake it's not incurable.

DEAR ABBY: We read with interest the letter regarding kids who love loud music, much to the dismay of their parents.

There is another group of offenders. I refer to church organists who pull out all the stops and play at a volume that actually makes your ears ache!

Our hearing is normal. We don't need to have that kind of volume to hear.

Sometimes we can hardly wait to get out of church. In fact, we have actually quit going to one church for this reason.

When we mentioned this to one organist, she took it as a personal criticism of her playing and was quite miffed. Perhaps a word in your column would be more effective. I hope so.

C.E.

DEAR C.E.: I hear you loud and clear.

YOUR HEALTH

Ladder no spot for dizzy spells

My father, who is 84, is unbelievably active. He still runs his own business, hangs awnings from the top of a ladder, and doesn't pamper himself. However, he has a terrific buzzing in the ears and he has gone from doctor to doctor to no avail. He fell a few weeks ago because he felt dizzier than usual. He went to two doctors and they listened, and said nothing could be done. Is this true? He lives alone and I am worried about his dizziness, buzzing and falling. I would appreciate any suggestion. — Mrs. I.Y.

DEAR MRs. Y.:

My first and immediate suggestion is that you get him off that ladder. He is bound to have a dizzy spell before long that will result in a fall, a fracture, or worse.

He sounds like a charming man. But that does not compensate for the fact that he has arteriosclerotic changes in the blood vessels. Almost always the narrowing of the blood vessels in the brain and in the inner ear account for the symptoms you describe. The buzzing noise, known as tinnitus, and the episodes of dizziness are characteristic of an inadequate flow of blood and oxygen to the brain.

You make a special point of saying that he goes to doctors who say "nothing can be done." Nothing can be done because arteriosclerotic changes in the blood vessels are not reversible at his age.

Despite the unbelievable activity of your father, you must arrange for him to change his patterns of work and activity so that he will not be exposed to the hazards he is subjecting himself to. There are now a number of drugs which can modify the frequency and severity of his dizzy spells. If he can avoid rapid changes of position and rapid changes in the movement of his head, the dizzy spells may be lightened.

My husband has been warned that he must stop drinking alcohol completely because he has cirrhosis of the liver. If he stops, will the cirrhosis disappear? — Mrs. S.G.

Dear Mrs. G.:

When alcohol in any form is taken in large quantities over a long period of time it can produce changes in the delicate structure of the liver. The normal healthy tissue becomes replaced by dense fibrous tissue, which then seriously impairs the liver's function.

When once cirrhosis sets in, the changes rarely disappear. Nevertheless, it is imperative that your husband stop drinking so that he has the best chance to prevent further cirrhosis. There are now many accurate enzyme studies which are used as a good indication of how well the liver is healing and if it can again function to preserve maximum health.

Crime pays at auction

SURREY (CP) — Bargain hunters had a field day at a public auction in the glittery mansion of a once-prosperous entrepreneur who now is in prison.

A 1979 Lincoln Continental, valued at $25,000, sold for $18,100. A 1947 lithograph by Dutch-born artist Maurits Escher sold for $975, far below its true value.

About 300 persons gathered for the auction and 325 lots fetched almost $50,000 when auctioneer Tom Lindsell finished four hours later.

The site was the Ocean Park estate of Steve McGuire, now serving two years at Matsqui federal prison after pleading guilty May 31 to charges of fraud, accepting a benefit and possession of stolen property.

Provincial court Judge Nick Friesen also fined McGuire, a Montreal native, $100,000, or a third year in jail.

McGuire's home, once valued at $750,000, sold for about $350,000. It was heavily mortgaged.

The trappings were the accumulations of a man who lived extravagantly during a short, but fast-paced splurge of splashy prosperity.

McGuire's wife, Della, was not present, but is expected to receive all proceeds from the auction.

Crash kills Island man

CAMPBELL RIVER (CP) — Brendan John Regan, 20, of this Vancouver Island community has been identified as the man who died Sunday in a motorcycle accident on Highway 28 about two kilometres west of here.

Police said the victim's bike failed to negotiate a corner, went into a ditch and struck a pole.

$16M chip terminal open

NORTH VANCOUVER (CP) — A $16 million wood chip shiploading terminal which opened here Monday will export waste and import dollars, according to Economics Minister Don Phillips.

"Here we have a new industry that both eliminates a costly waste disposal problem and promises to earn up to $50 million a year," Phillips said Monday. "Those dollars are all from offshore and their impact on the B.C. economy will be much magnified by the time the money has worked its full effect."

Phillips officially inaugurated the terminal which was built by Fibreco Export Inc., a co-operative marketing organization serving 42 independent sawmillers.

In 1980 the terminal will ship 960 million pounds of chips to Japan as the first part of a long-term supply contract with pulp companies there.

By the second quarter of next year, Fibreco is expected to sign a major contract with European customers which will fully tie up the new terminal facilities.

Phillips said the the problem of surplus wood chips in B.C. became acute in 1977 and sawmillers, whose over-all financial balance depended on them getting some return from the chips, found the domestic market swamped with fibre.

Devising the solution was easy, said Phillips, but realizing it was hard. Small companies had to band together to produce an assured chip supply of sufficent volume to justify the formation of the major chip handling and marketing company.

The bidding:

Opening lead — nine of clubs.

Let's say your're in four hearts and West leads a club, won by East with the jack. East cashes the ace of clubs and then shifts to the four of diamonds. This is a disappointing development. Had East led a third club, you would have been certain to make the contract.

After ruffing high, you would draw two rounds of trumps, cash the A-K of spades, ruff a spade, play a trump to dummy's queen, and lead the jack of diamonds. West would win the jack, as expected, but would have to return a diamond or else hand you a ruff and discard.

But when East shifts to a diamond at trick three, your plan suddenly collapses. You know from the bidding, as well as the size of East's diamond, that the four is a singleton, and you also know that if you finesse West will win and return a diamond to put you down one.

At the same time, you realize that rising with the ace of diamonds will leave you with two diamond losers and that the same fate will threaten you. But, after stewing a while with this dilemma, you suddenly realize there's a way out. You can still execute an endplay, though of an altogether different sort.

You win the diamond return at trick three with the ace, draw trumps, cash the A-K of spades, ruff a spade, enter dummy with a trump, and lead the queen of clubs. When East covers the queen with the king you discard a diamond, deliberately losing a club trick you could have won.

This compels East to lead a spade or a club and, in either case, you make four hearts by discarding your last diamond as dummy ruffs the return. The club trick you purposely lose comes back with interest.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

BY SYDNEY OMARR
Wednesday, August 15

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Ideas, notes, calls, movements, relatives dominate scene. Be flexible, but avoid spreading efforts too thin. Gemini, Virgo, Sagittarius natives figure prominently. Money questions will be resolved. Be ready for constructive changes.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Accent on what your own, buy or sell — Libra, Scorpio and another Taurus could be involved. Stress harmony in dealing with family. Domestic adjustment is on agenda. You get what you've been seeking — could come in form of "surprise package."

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Cycle edges up — circumstances turn in your favor. What was a losing proposition can be transformed into a winner. Know it and act accordingly. Take initiative in expanding horizons. You will be finished with an unnecessary burden.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Friend provides you with special information. You now have more responsibility and are qualified to "hit jackpot." Relationship is intensified. Nothing is halfway — it is hot or cold, all or nothing. If merely playing games, move on!

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Obtain valid hint from Cancer message. Doors open due to social contacts, friendships. Aura of the clandestine is present, including intrigue and romance. Pisces, Virgo — and the number 7 — figure in scenario.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Circumstances surrounding career, occupation or business change — for the better. You get new deal. You can imprint style and be more independent in thought, action. Money involved with travel or publishing is in picture.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Accent on intuition, psychology, teaching and communication. Plan for journey. Deal with Leo, Cancer, Aquarius persons. You get special message in unorthodox manner. Check sources, but also follow instincts.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Setback can be used to ultimate advantage. Accent on leases, permissions, licensing procedures, financial status of one close to you. Gemini, Sagittarius persons figure prominently. Outline long-range plans. You are running a winning race!

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Emphasis on public relations, getting point across, presenting personal image in best possible light. Check fine print, be sure you are on right side of legal track. One who feels compelled to tell you what to do . . . will reverse gears and ask for counsel.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You get news in connection with work, special services. Member of opposite sex figures prominently. An energetic association shows way to save time — and money. One who depends on you will show that your efforts are appreciated.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Lunar aspect coincides with speculation, change, games of chance. Stick with number 6. You could receive gift in "luxury" category. Taurus, Libra, Scorpio natives play prominent roles. Home could become a more harmonious place.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Complete transaction, be practical concerning basic values. Older individual wants to help, but could be financially depleted. Know it, prepare accordingly. Dream, if properly interpreted, proves prophetic.

IF AUGUST 15 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY . . . you have power to win your way, to persuade, to use your voice in teaching or drama. You are due for breakthrough. Build on solid base, attend to details, check souce material. Valuable social contacts are made in August, along with travel plans. Opportunities open in publishing, communication. You will be relieved of foolish burden — horizons expand and "touch of fame" reaches towards you. Taurus, Libra, Scorpio persons play important roles in your life. You are charming, stubborn, self-indulgent and "spoiled" by members of opposite sex.

Viets offered poor housing

VANCOUVER (CP) — Canada Mortgage and Housing Corp. put out the welcome mat for Vietnamese refugees but has had few takers for what housing experts say are run-down houses.

The federal agency offered to rent more than 100 Vancouver and area homes to Vietnamese families at rock bottom prices. Only one family has accepted accommodation.

The catch is that many of the homes are outside Vancouver, and several are in poor shape.

The two- and three-bedroom single and row houses — some have been vacant and neglected for 18 months — have been critcized by housing experts and neighbors who said the plumbing is plugged and the only interested tenants are rats and stray cats.

"People are not interested in them," said Leonard Or, spokesman for the refugee resettlement centre, which has found homes for more than 200 refugees.

"They prefer to live in or around Chinatown. The facilities are here. How are they going to enrol in English classes if they are way out in Mission? (about 60 kilometres east of Vancouver)."

A spokesman for the United Chinese Enrichment Service Society said the organization found homes for 600 refugees, but none of them are corporation houses.

"Maybe if we're desperate, but we are doing all right so far," she said.

Most of the homes were repossessed by the corporation after a mortgage assistance program left scores of people unable to pay the bill.

Jim Walker, corporation manager, agreed that many of the homes, built cheaply to keep costs down, need repair. But he guaranteed that each house will be fixed as soon as tenants have signed a lease. The corporation hopes the tenants will then buy or rent the homes at market value.

"We are not going to do a crash improvement program in anticipation of renting them out," he said.

Government-sponsored refugees are being directed toward private homes and apartments. Immigration officials said they are not interested in the corporation's offer because it means signing a six-month commitment — something government officials refuse to do, and because the corporation will not rule out the possibility of rent increases.

Elmer MacKay, federal minister responsible for the corporation, said it is not trying to capitalize on the refugee situation, but wants to retain the option of rent increases.

Bear shot after visit

OSOYOOS (CP) — Provincial fish and wildlife branch officials were forced to shoot a 150-pound yearling brown bear Monday after it strayed to within two blocks of the business section of this community.

Officials were called after Arnold Pohl found the bear in a tree near his home. Four hours later, they arrived from Penticton, the bear was still in the tree but they ruled out tranquillizing the animal because it was in a residential area.

Wildlife officers speculated the bear wandered into the city during the night in search of water.

Quebec inventor's 'secret' may cap Mexico oil spill

QUEBEC (UPC) — Two Quebec City men left Monday for the site of the world's worst oil blowout off the Mexican coast in the Bay of Campeche where they will attempt to stop the oil and gas flow with a new invention.

Jules Marois, 46, and engineer Guy Doin were asked by the Mexican oil company Pemex to visit the Ixtoc One well site and try to stem the flow of oil.

Marois, a Quebec City inventor, perfected an unorthodox technique to cap above-ground blowouts some years ago.

A spokesman for Marois refused to give details of the procedure, saying the technique was secret. However, he said Marois would not actually cap the well.

Marois has also invented and patented a water-wall, described as the world's first truly fire-proof system.

"Although a fire is raging on the surface of the sea fed by bubbling oil and gas, it is not a fire problem at Ixtoc One and it is not a problem for my water-wall invention," Marois said before leaving for the Yucatan coast.

"Rather it is a completely different approach to halt the gushing. I will have to be on the site to know if my method can be applied."

The broken well-head is about 45.6 meters beneath the surface. Experts,including famed Texas oil blowout specialist Red Adair, have been unable to cap the wild well.

By the end of July, about 30,000 barrels a day were spewing from Ixtoc One and a huge oil slick was threatening the coast of Texas.

"I had a similar capping problem some years ago but not in an oil well, but nevertheless it was this type of stubborn capping problem and I hit on a way to solve it," Marois said.

Marois and Dion will be flown from Mexico City to the well-site sometime today.

The Lord is my Shepherd
I shall not want
He maketh me to lie down in green pastures
He leadeth me beside the still waters
He restoreth my soul
He leadeth me in the path of righteousness for his name sake
Yea though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death
I will fear no evil
For thou art with me, thy rod and thy staff they comfort me
Thou preparest a table before me in the presence of mine enemies.
Thou anointest my head with oil
My cup runneth over
Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life and I will dwell in the House of the Lord forever.

Use nature's secret when picking fruits

GARDENING

Jack Beastall

Question: When should peaches be picked?

Answer: When the fruits are ripe and ready for picking.

Facetious? No. Just a statement of fact, although not exactly helpful unless you know how to tell when a fruit is ripe.

Today we are inclined to accept a marketed product as the standard of perfection, forgetting the fruits must be handled many times, often by machinery, and shipped many kilometres for distribution, therefore cannot be picked at the peak of perfection.

Our main purpose for growing fruits in the home garden is, or should be, to enjoy that fruit when it is at its best. In other words, to have what money cannot buy.

We often go out of our way to learn the secrets of machinery, such as how an automatic auto transmission on the car we drive is able to adjust to road and traffic conditions without human assistance, but we rarely give thought to the automatic mechanism which keeps leaves attached to a tree until their work is done, and then discards them.

An automatic mechanism holds fruits on a tree, regardless of their weight, until such time as the seeds within the fruit have fully developed, then releases them so the seed may reach the soil, germinate, and make new plants.

The mechanism itself consists of a layer of specialized plant cells within the stem that holds the fruit, often visible as a lump or thickening of the stem.

The cells are kept active by special hormones which the tree supplies as long as the seeds are developing naturally.

When no seeds are present, or development of the seed is arrested, the hormone supply is not needed and therefor is cut off, allowing the cells to dry up and the fruit to fall. This also happens when the seeds are fully developed and the fruits are what the gardener calls "ripe".

These cells form an abscission layer, abscission being defined as "cutting off;, removal by surgery; sudden ending."

Going back to the question of when are fruits ready for picking, if the abscission layer has nearly dried out the fruit will separate from the plant as soon as it is touched, either by the gardener, a bird, or a gust of wind.

Trained fruit pickers on private estates understand this mechanism. Fruits are picked by placing the hand at the base and raising them to a horizontal position. When the fruit is ready to pick it will drop into the palm of the hand. If not it is left for a day or two to complete ripening.

This brings us back to our original answer; the time to pick is when the fruit is ripe and ready for picking.

It is amazing how few gardeners know when berries are ready for picking.

The same layer of cells operates to keep a berry attached to the plant. The lightest touch with the tumb and finger will release a ripe berry and allow it fall into the palm of the hand.

When force is needed to pull the berry free it is not ripe, nor has it reached its peak of sweetness and flavor.

Berries that are pulled off the plant are only fit for cooking, requiring a large amount of sugar that would not be necessary if they were allowed to remain on the plant another day or two to develop their natural sweetness.

Pickets strike interior sawmills

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — A number of sawmill operations in British Columbia's central Interior were behind picket lines today.

The action followed a breakdown in talks Monday between Forest Industrial Relations and negotiators for 5,000 northern Interior woodworkers.

Pickets were up at the Canim Lake sawmill northwest of 100 Mile House and at the Pinette and Therrien mill and the West Fraser Planer operation, both in Williams Lake.

In addition, the Ainsworth Lumber mill in Lone Butte near 100 Mile House was behind a picket line as was 100 Mile Cedar Products.

Martin McLeod, a spokesman for Canim Lake sawmill, said pickets at that operation were not set up by the 500 union members employed at the mill.

He said the pickets are members of the International Woodworkers of America from a nearby mill. The Canim lake mill, owned by Weldwood Canada, negotiates separately with the industry.

The northern Interior contract with the IWA expires Aug. 30. The union has said it has been offered only portions of an agreement signed recently by coastal and southern Interior members.

Major issues in the talks include wages and common contract expiry date.

About 38,000 coast and southern Interior woodworkers approved a two-year agreement last month that provided an increase of 90 cents an hour in the first year and an increase of 9.5 per cent or 90 cents and hour, whichever is greater, in the second. The old base rate was $8.16 an hour.

Brush blaze doused near golf course

Saanich firemen doused a brush fire near the Cedar Hill golf course late Monday.

Flames were spotted in brush alongside the jogging trail at the end of Camrose. It is believed the fire was started by a careless smoker.

Fire controlled

A five-acre forest fire that broke out Monday in the Stamp Falls Park area about 16 kilometres north of Port Alberni is under control, a forestry official said today.

He said 50 men are at the scene, along with a tractor and three water tankers.

Officials said the fire burned through five acres of timber on both sides of the Stamp River.

Seven water bombers were on the scene Monday, but one Conair plane had to be taken out of service after one of its engines caught fire.

Mair irked by Hydro release

B.C. Hydro's insistence on acting independently of the provincial government has angered Environment Minister Rafe Mair.

The minister was upset by Hydro's announcement it had made up its mind on the route of the Cheekye-Dunsmuir power line to Vancouver Island the same day the minister released a report critical of the route.

Mair said out of courtesy to Hydro he had been keeping the corporation informed of the timing of the report's release.

The minister said he was "shocked, appalled and damned mad" when Hydro made its public statement on the route.

Hydro said the route for the mainland segment of the powerline to Vancouver Island is the cheapest but it is being opposed by residents of the Sechelt Peninsula as the worst choice environmentally.

Their opposition is largely supported by a study undertaken by University of B.C. consultant Dr. Marvin Shaffer.

Shaffer questioned the need for the line at all at this time, saying Hydro's projections for future power needs on the island exceed his estimates.

After being pressed in the legislature to release the Shaffer report, Mair finally agreed.

He told Hydro he intended to release the report Aug. 7.

On that same day, Hydro announced its choice for the power line route would be the one strongly objected to by the Sechelt residents and the Shaffer study.

Mair said he had no idea Hydro was coming down with its decision that day.

The minister said Hydro has not heard the last of the matter and will take further action on his return from government business in eastern Canada.

Threat to hearings?

The type of public hearings that saved the Dayliner service may be in jeopardy, Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway steering committee chairman John Cooper said Monday.

He sounded the warning after a joint statement by the Canadian Railway Labor Association, the Consumers' Association of Canada and Transport 2000. The statement said the transport ministry wants a Via Rail Act that would reduce the power of the Canadian Transport Commission.

"It would put power in the hands of the bureaucrats to make whatever decisions they wanted," Cooper said.

He said he had been told the three organizations had based their statement on information leaked in Ottawa.

The proposed legislation, the statement said, would substantially reduce the power of the CTC to decide through the public hearing process questions relating to the quality and frequency and discontinuation of passenger rail service.

Harry Gow, president of Transport 2000, said "in times of increasing openness in government it would be inconsistent to remove consideration of such major issues from the public forum and to hand it over to the bureaucracy."

Bylaw aired on pollution

A public hearing opened today in Gold River on a precedent-setting bylaw proposed by the Mowachaht Indian Band.

The band is about to enact a bylaw under the Indian Act which would control pollution from the Tahsis pulp mill.

The mill is on the reserve and across the road from the homes.

Indians there say they suffer from upper respiratory ailments, skin rashes, eye infections and hearing loss because of the pollution.

Rick Salter, a legal adviser to the band, says on some days the cedar dust is so bad that smoke detectors go off in the homes.

The bylaw, if not vetoed by the department of Indian Affairs, would levy a $100 fine or 30 days in jail for infractions.

U.S. 'fish hogs' irk city anglers

By JANE COVERNTON
Times Staff

"Fish hogs" from the United States are taking more than their limit of salmon in the Campbell River area and canning it, two Victoria fishermen claim.

Fisheries officials agree.

Norm Lemmen, federal fisheries district supervisor for Campbell River, said some tourists are still exceeding salmon limits, even though a relaxation of rules allows them to take home four times as much as last year.

Dwight Crandall and Bob Dunaway, both of Victoria, said they saw two California fishermen take 18 salmon in one day. They said the Americans told them they caught 40 the previous day and 20 the day before that.

The limit is four each per day.

Crandall and Dunaway said Americans set up in Campbell River for the summer with their own canning outfits and freezers.

They couldn't get a space in a campsite because spots are being held for Americans.

Crandall said fisheries officers are turning a blind eye to infractions by Americans.

"If they wanted to stop it they could. When the fish are all gone, what are you going to do?"

But Lemmen said it's almost impossible to catch those who exceed the limit.

"People are canning their limit, putting it on a busline or airline, sending it home, and then continuing to fish.

"The only way I can do anything is to catch an individual in possession of more fish than he's allowed."

Other fisheries officers in the area deny the infractions are being ignored.

"I've heard the protests before," said George Vardy of the Quathiaski sub-district.

"The rumors are not new. But our patrols are checking them all. We do ramp checks and checks on the fishing grounds. The checks are random and totally impartial."

But Varty said there is a problem in patrolling up to 800 boats a day.

He said there is no sign that marina operators are encouraging over-fishing by Americans.

The operators may not be encouraging over-fishing, but they are encouraging the Americans.

Frank Copithorne of Salmon Point Resorts estimates that Americans make up 75 per cent of his business and that they each spend up to $1,500 a month in the area.

Campbell River benefits from the sport fishing industry to the tune of $20 million a year.

Copithorne said Americans were concerned when the federal fisheries department announced new regulations last July, limiting the canned salmon take to 25 pounds per fishermen.

Many had been canning more than 300 pounds of salmon per season.

The fisheries branch later backed down and set the limit higher. It also backed down from tougher limits on size and use of the barbed hook after protests from marina operators and fishermen.

Now under B.C.'s general fishing regulations a person can have either eight fresh fish and 25 pounds canned, four fish and 50 pounds, or 100 pounds canned.

Copithorne said many Americans might have stayed away if they could only take back 25 pounds.

"Many of the Americans keep their campers here. They plant vegetables. It's like a summer residence. Momma cans the salmon and they take it back to barter or give to their kids."

Copithorne said the reports of Americans taking out huge amounts of salmon may stem from a certain amount of jealousy.

But the rules were eased so much this year that some say it would be hard to exceed the limits.

A couple, for example, would have to catch about 300 pounds of salmon to get the 200 pounds canned that two people are allowed. At an average of five pounds each, that's about 60 fish, a good catch during a mediocre season, but an easy mark for people who stay here all summer.

For those who want more, there are loopholes large enough to drive a motorboat through. There is no limit on what you can have in your home, so locals aren't restricted, and out-of-towners can have as much salmon as they want canned and shipped by a custom canner.

The irony may be that the fishing's not that good.

Bev Ebert of the Rustic Motel says: "There's not that much fish around. If they're taking out all those fish we'd like to know about it."

Picket ruling reversed

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia Labor Relations Board Monday reversed a previous ruling and prohibited the Canadian Association of Industrial, Mechanical and Allied Workers from picketing a Houston mine.

A spokesman said the board decided that Commonwealth Construction Ltd. should be protected from union pickets at the new Equity mine site.

About 500 union workers have been on strike at the Placer Development's Endako mine near Fraser Lake, about 150 kilometres west of Prince George, since Feb. 14.

Administrator appointed for Green Zone program

Agriculture Minister Jim Hewitt has named district agriculturist Peter Ewert to head the province's new Green Zone program.

The program is aimed at reducing environmental conflicts between neighboring farm and non-farm uses.

Ewert will administer the program across the province and work with regional and municipal governments once those levels of government have passed bylaws establishing green zones.

The program is currently being designed by the minister in conjunction with municipal affairs, the agricultural land commission and the B.C. Federation of Agriculture.

It will look for a formula to specify distances between livestock facilities and neighboring non-farm uses.

The situation in Saanich where residential projects are now butting up against Fatt's Poultry Farm will be the type of problem the program is aimed to prevent in future.

The environment minister is embarking on a 10-year $20 million program to improve the base mapping information in the province.

The program will assist municipal and regional authorities to undertake surveys and mapping under the co-ordination of the surveys and mapping branch of the ministry.

Sun-Ripe pact approved

KELOWNA (CP) — Plant workers at Sun-Ripe Products Ltd. have ratified a new contract settlement that will provide increases totalling 40 per cent over three years.

The contract, approved by about a 90-per-cent majority, provides raises of 90 cents-an-hour in the first year, 80 cents in the second year and 75 cents in the third year, retroactive to May 1. Base rate in the old contract was $6.66 an hour.

About 200 employees are affected.

Horror drive for city teens

Philip

Dena

By PAUL MINVIELLE
Times Staff

Hitch-hiking turned to horror for two Victoria teenagers held captive last week by a knife-wielding convict from Kingston Penitentiary.

Philip White, 17, is in satisfactory condition at Baker Memorial Hospital in Quesnel recovering from stab wounds.

Dena Vinqvist, also 17, was en route from Edson to her parents' condominium at 1525 Hillside today, after being rescued by the RCMP in an episode worthy of the wildest movie thriller.

For Einar and Elaine Vinqvist, the sign they placed on their daughter's bedroom door — "Welcome home, Dena" — was only a hint of the relief they felt at the news that she was safe and on her way back to Victoria.

Even this morning, the Vinqvists had had to rely on newspaper accounts of what had happened.

It started when the two teenagers hitched a ride in Sudbury, Ont.

"We were getting along fine until Winnipeg," Vinqvist said Monday in Edson, the western Alberta community where she was rescued.

"I wanted to stop in Winnipeg to get a present for my girl friend. He (the driver) said he couldn't take us there. He pulled out a knife and made Philip sit down under the dash and stabbed him."

White lay in the back seat of the car for three or four days, she said.

"He was suffering a lot."

The stab wound punctured White's lung.

Miss Vinqvist said they arrived in Quesnel Saturday where the driver tied White up about 270 metres behind a rest stop.

RCMP said White managed to free himself shortly afterwards and get himself to a Quesnel hospital. He had an operation Monday and is recovering.

Meanwhile, the driver took Miss Vinqvist with him back to Alberta.

At a gas station near Hinton, Alta, just east of Jasper National Park, Miss Vinqvist managed to talk her way into the washroom where she left a note using paper towels and a pen she had in her purse.

About 15 minutes later, another person using the washroom found the note.

Staff-Sgt. Barry Golberg of the Edson RCMP said within a half-hour of getting word of the girl's call for help, police had the car stopped at a roadblock.

He said the driver surrendered without resistance.

RCMP said Denis McCullough, 38, who failed to return from day parole from a Kingston, Ont., prison Aug. 5, was transferred to Edmonton today.

July jobless dips to 7.2%

OTTAWA (CP) — The number of Canadians who failed to find jobs in July dropped for the fourth consecutive month to 793,000.

The June figure was 798,000.

The national unemployment rate, adjusted to take into account normal seasonal variations, was 7.2 per cent last month compared with 7.5 per cent in June.

British Cclumbia's rate was 7.3 per cent compared with 7.7 per cent last month.

Monthly figures released by the government today show the seasonally-adjusted jobless rate, the normal measure of the seriousness of unemployment, at its lowest level in almost three years. The last time the unemployment rate fell below 7.5 per cent of the labor force was in September, 1976.

Young people continued to shoulder the largest burden of unemployment last month. The rate for men in the 15-to-24 age bracket was 11.9 per cent. For women in the same age group, the rate was 12.7 per cent.

The numbers with jobs increased last month to 10.8 million from 10.6 million in June.

Persistent regional problems continue to plague the country. Newfoundland, traditionally the hardest-hit by unemployment, had a July rate of 14.4 per cent. The province with the lowest rate was Alberta with 3.6 per cent.

Monthly figures from Statistics Canada showed 63 per cent of the population is either working or seeking work. This is exactly the same as one year earlier.

The federal agency said there were 131,000 students who unsuccessfully sought summer jobs in July. This put the unemployment level among students planning to return to school in the fall at 11.9 per cent. The corresponding 1978 monthly figure was 15.2 per cent.

Although Canada's unemployment situation has been steadily improving this year, its rate last month of 7.2 per cent remained well above the 5.7-per-cent July unemployment rate reported in the United States.

Canada and the United States both have considerably larger unemployment rates than most nations of Western Europe which have been reporting about five-per-cent unemployment this year.

Japan has reported about two-per-cent unemployment.

Rich to get richer

OTTAWA (CP) — A Statistics Canada survey on home ownership supports critics' claims that the government proposal for mortgage interest deductibility will primarily benefit the well to do.

The average annual income of homeowners with mortgages is more than $22,000, the federal statistics-gathering agency says in a special survey based on information gathered in the spring of 1977.

More than two years later, the average annual income of Canadians is $14,820.

Statistics Canada had originally planned to release the mortgage and home-ownership information in a broader publication next year.

A key Conservative campaign promise was to make mortgage interest and property taxes deductible from taxable income. The proposal, to be phased in over four years, would allow deductions of up to $5,000 in mortgage interest payments and $1,000 in property tax.

The Statistics Canada survey, based on information from 13,000 families and unattached individuals, showed that only 24.9 per cent of homeowners earned $10,000 or less a year and 40.8 per cent earned less than $15,000 annually.

Further, the study shows that only 54 per cent of homeowners have mortgage debts which would make them eligible for the Conservative tax break proposal.

Unification review to start by month-end

WINNIPEG (CP) — Defence Minister Allan McKinnon said Monday a commission examining the integration of Canada's armed forces should be ready to start work by Sept. 1.

McKinnon said the Progressive Conservative government is "not at all" committed to the integration policy introduced 11 years ago by the previous Liberal government.

McKinnon said the government expects to announce names of the five commissioners soon. Four persons have agreed to serve and talks are continuing with a fifth person.

"They're being charged with determining what the merits and demerits of unification are, and recommending what I should do about it," McKinnon told a press conference.

He said the commissioners might recommend that Canada revert to three separate armed forces, stay with the present system or "have something half-way between."

Crash kills 2, severs power

Two Victoria youths were killed early today when their car hit a rock and crashed into a power pole at the intersection of West Saanich and Old West Roads in Central Saanich.

Pronounced dead at the scene were David James Shillington, 16, of 5226 Rambler Road, and Dale William Guenther, 14, of 5185 Rambler Road.

The accident knocked out power in the area and the Saanich fire department had to loan floodlights to police investigating the crash.

The fatal crash occurred about 4 a.m.

Area resident Mrs. Frank Smith, of 6489 Old West Road, said she had arisen early and heard the crash.

B.C. Hydro restored power in the area after about half an hour.

Wild seas foul race

At last report the Vancouver racing yacht Pachina — among 330 yachts battered by ferocious seas that killed at least four yachtsmen off southwest England today — was holding its own.

Skippered by Swiftsure veteran John Newton, the Pachina out of the Royal Vancouver Yacht Club is one of three Canadian yachts in Admiral's Cup competition. The others are Canada's Cup champion Evergreen from Hamilton and Magistri from Toronto.

At press time no Canadians were listed among the dead or missing.

New hospital rate 'insult, disaster'

The president of the B.C. Association of Private Care Hospitals said today its members will not accept new rates for private care facilities providing long-term care.

The new rates were announced Monday by the health ministry.

Association president Pat Shields said the rates provide only a 1.4 per cent increase for extended care patients.

"That rate is an insult to the operators of private hospitals in this province especially when the government is paying $45 to $56 a day in government-operated hospitals."

The new rates have gone up 50 cents to $35 a day for extended care.

The association will meet Wednesday to discuss its options.

Those options, outlined by Shields, include closing down, opting out of the program or refusing to accept any more admissions at this time.

Trevor Shuckburgh, president of the B.C. Association of Private Care Facilities, said the new rates are a "disaster" but nothing further can be done by his organization at this time.

The ministry said in a news release the 8,600 B.C. residents in the institutions will not have to pay for the $4 million increase. Individual rates will continue at $6.50 a day towards cost of care.

A government spokesman said payments by the province to the facilities have been increased by about nine per cent over-all.

But Shields said private hospitals have experienced a 44 per cent increase in costs since the program was started in Jauary, 1978.

Vultures everywhere; toll soars

NEW DELHI (UPI) — Government officials toured the corpse-strewn streets of the western city of Morji Tuesday and predicted the death toll would exceed 10,000 from floodwaters that engulfed the area when a dam broke three days ago.

"Vultures are everywhere," said a man looking for relatives in Morvi, where bodies were reported still littering streets, houses, roofs and temples. "Wherever I went, I saw badly bloated bodies lying scattered in the streets."

Rescue officials said they had recovered 1,000 bodies from the muddy ruins of Morvi, 300 miles north of Bombay.

"The death toll will be between 10,000 and 15,000," Vice President Vallabhai Patel of Gujrat state's governing Janata Party told reporters in Morvi. Other estimates ran as high as 25,000 dead.

Officials first reported 1,000 dead after the Monchi Dam broke Saturday, then admitted today that "1,000 bodies have been dug out."

The flood waters largely had subsided, leaving corpses in the thick mud covering the city, which had a population of 60,000.

District Magistrate A.R. Banerji, more conservative than the politicians, estimated that "600 to 700 more bodies might be found," and added, "But it's difficult to say how many persons are missing."

Indian reporters said three villages with an estimated population of 50,000 were wiped out by the water and "nobody knows the fate of the residents."

An Indian air force helicopter pilot who flew over the area said all the straw-roofed mud houses of a village known to have 5,000 people were washed away and there was no trace of the inhabitants.

Health authorities feared an epidemic if the decomposing bodies were not quickly buried. Medical teams were checking for cholera symptoms among the thousands made homeless by the flood.

"We are planning to inoculate 1,000 people per hour," one doctor said.

John and Patricia Ganas . . . it started with a $30,000 win in Monte Carlo

By AB KENT
Times Staff

Will success rock John Ganas?

Not unless he and his wife Patricia give up their tactics.

She's the one who put both their names on a Loto Canada ticket which made them the country's newest instant millionaires last week.

"It was her ticket," the 65-year-old corporate secretary said in an interview before going house-hunting in Oak Bay.

"I am lucky," his wife admitted, fingering a gold charm bracelet with a four-leaf clover and a horseshoed 13. "I'm very superstitious and I'm very optimistic."

She mentioned her Irish father's influence.

Her luck started years ago when she won $30,000 at Monte Carlo.

The Montrealers were here on holiday when they found out their lottery ticket had paid off.

But after a brief spell of hysteria and a sleepless night, and with the money in the bank, they settled down under a cloak of serenity to view their good fortune with a certain objectivity.

It's not going to change their lifestyle, they insist, except for an earlier retirement for both.

How did they get the news of their big win?

Ganas said he and his wife were with a friend driving around Victoria for a last look before going back east, holiday over. Each had an interest in the draw which had already been held.

Their friend said: "Here we are, all holding tickets on Loto Canada and one of us might be a millionaire."

Intrigued, they made inquiries. They learned the delirious news by phone and went through a frenzied few minutes.

Mrs. Ganas screamed: "We've won a million."

Ganas nearly let go of the drink he was pouring.

"It was a little emotional, if you can picture the scene," he said.

Then they were en route to Vancouver to visit their son Bill.

"I took the ticket and slept on it under my pillow to make sure it wouldn't fade away," Mrs. Ganas said.

On Tuesday, after the B.C. Day holiday, they took their ticket to the regional lottery office. A courier took it to Ottawa for verification and brought back the $1 million cheque Thursday.

Since their win was confirmed, Mrs. Ganas quit her job as a ward secretary in Montreal Jewish General Hospital and her husband gave notice he will leave his post as assistant to the chairman of Steinberg Inc. by the end of October.

Ganas described phoning to tell his boss about the million, just as he got home from a football game.

"I told him I would like to negotiate a permanent retirement no later than the end of October. He laughed like hell.

"He understood. Why should I work? I'm 65 and was planning retirement anyway."

His wife was more definite. Her boss agreed also with her decision to quit and can hardly wait for her to get back to Montreal so the hospital group that sold her the ticket can claim a vendor's prize. But the Jewish hospital will retain her interest and support.

Part of her winnings will buy patients a new renal dialysis machine.

A larger chunk will go to purchase their retirement home, which they decided will be in Oak Bay.

"I want to be close to the water. I've already put my feet in," Mrs. Ganas said.

There'll be no more apartment living for them.

"I want my own little bungalow where I can have my own washer and dryer," Mrs. Ganas said.

Winning is a habit for her.

"She plays the football pools," her husband said.

"A pound a week for 30 years," she added. " Sometimes I break even, sometimes I'm ahead. I won $900 on them last year. I bought Loto tickets and won $1,800."

"That's how we came out here on holiday last year," Ganas said.

And just for good measure this time, Mrs. Ganas also won two $100 prizes with her Loto Canada tickets.

They want to be settled in by winter and look forward to being with their three grown children.

"We expect to have them all home (in Oak Bay) for Christmas."

Later, Ganas said, they hope to travel. They want to see the U.S. west coast, Hawaii and perhaps Australia, where friends live.

And they will keep buying lottery tickets "because we know a good portion of the money helps developing athletes. We don't expect to win again," Ganas said.

Nurses join union to get more clout

Registered nurses at Gorge Road Hospital have joined the Hospital Employees Union in an effort to get, among other things, more bargaining clout than they have under their own professional organization.

The decision to join the 22,000-member HEU was made at a meeting last Thursday and union secretary-business manager Jack Gerow said HEU applied to the Labor Relations Board for certification on Friday.

There is no indication how long it will take the board to make a decision on the certification bid. About 70 nurses are involved.

The move by the Gorge Road hospital is a first for the Victoria area and is seen by some as a possible indicator of a trend by nurses in other B.C. hospitals to opt for a union that would give them more muscle at a time when they are complaining of staff shortages and poor working conditions.

Gerow would not comment in any detail on the Gorge Road nurses' move because the matter is before the LRB.

However, he said the precedent for HEU representing registered nurses has been set. The union already represents graduate nurses and registerd nurses in the Lower Mainland, he said.

Sources indicated the reasons for the nurses action at the Gorge Road hospital centre around their concern about nursing care and staff shortages as well as a desire for a better contract.

The nurses feel the Registered Nurses Association of B.C., although serving a role in the education and discipline of nurses, is not doing a job in the labor relations field.

Excrement mailed to city doctor in bitter row among B.C. medics

A bitter battle within the establishment of the B.C. medical profession has degenerated into a campaign which has seen former Canadian Medical Association head Dr. Peter Banks sent human excrement in the mail.

An as yet unnamed Burnaby doctor mailed the feces to the Victoria physician as part of a hate mail campaign that has grown from a long-standing internal feud within the B.C. Medical Association.

Sources in Vancouver say the incident is described in a front page story of the BCMA's newspaper to be distributed Wednesday.

Banks refused to comment, saying: "It won't do the profession any good."

Banks seconded the nomination of Dr. Bill Thomas for the president-elect of the Canadian Medical Association after another B.C. doctor had earlier been chosen to be B.C.'s nominee.

B.C. will host the CMA's annual convention in 1980.

It has been the tradition of the 107-year-old association that it elect its president from the province designated to hold the next convention.

Therefore at this year's convention in June in Toronto, tradition would dictate a B.C. doctor be the CMA's president-elect for the 1980 convention in Vancouver.

By an earlier mail-in ballot, B.C.'s physicians selected Dr. William Jory of North Vancouver as B.C.'s nominee at the national convention.

In ordinary circumstances, Jory would have been unopposed and therefore automatically chosen president for 1980.

But delegates from other provinces felt Jory, well-known as a member of B.C.'s so-called reform group, would not be a good choice for national president.

BANKS
. . . seconded nomination

During backroom discussions at the Toronto convention, many delegates agreed another representative would have to be elected president.

And since by tradition the president would be a B.C. doctor, Thomas, a moderate Vancouver physician, was asked if he would stand against Jory as a nominee from the floor.

He agreed and was nominated by a Saskatchewan physician.

Banks, a past president of the BCMA as well as the joint Canadian and British Medical Associations, seconded the nomination.

Banks and Thomas are within a medical faction which advocates discussions and negotiations with governments over fee schedules while Jory and his supporters advocate confrontation stragey in dealing with governments.

Jory, who is also a past president of the BCMA, was defeated by Thomas 126 votes to 47 for the national presidency.

The last time a nominee from the floor defeated the chosen nominee was in 1963.

Sources in the BCMA suggest Jory's unpopularity could also be connected with his unsuccessful move at last year's convention to be elected from the floor as chairman of the CMA's board of directors.

In seeking nomination from the floor, he went against a long-standing tradition where the board chairman's election is simply an endorsement.

So his defeat for CMA president at the hands of a nominee from the floor this year was a taste of his own medicine, the source suggested.

New tilt Thursday in battle for Daisy

The second round in the battle over ownership of Daisy the red-headed Amazon parrot will take place Thursday in county court here.

Erika Gidden, 1039 Linden, Monday asked for a new order after a technical defeat last week when an application was rejected for an interim order for possession of Daisy pending the outcome of the lawsuit.

Her motion, filed by lawyer Harold Turnham at the Law Courts, asks the court to grant an order that the defendants Allan and Stacy Sproule, 2813 Blackwood, "preserve that red-headed Amazon parrot named Daisy."

The motion asks that the defendants be ordered not to sell, lease, encumber or in any way dispose of the bird pending the trial. It also asks for an order that the defendants notify Mrs. Gidden's solicitors within three days if there is any change in the location at which the parrot is being kept.

Mrs. Gidden said in an affidavit that she turned Daisy over to Coral Sands Pet Shop manager Ruth Beauchamp last October asking to board it until she could find a place where she and her pet could live.

But Mrs. Beauchamp, in her affidavit, said Mrs. Gidden gave no explanation for the boarding or how long it would last.

Daisy, according to her, was bothered by other birds at the shop so she sub-boarded the bird with Mrs. Sproule, who in her affidavit said she knew then Daisy didn't belong to her and she was prepared to return it.

Mrs. Sproule said she was phoned in May by a woman who said she owned Daisy and who immediately offered to sell the parrot to her for $500. Mrs. Sproule said she accepted and made arrangements to borrow $500 from Mrs. Beauchamp.

But Mrs. Gidden said she asked the Sproules to return the parrot and while Mrs. Sproule inquired about purchasing Daisy no agreement was reached.

Mrs. Gidden said Daisy hasn't been returned to her but belongs to her. Mrs. Sproule said she is in lawful possession of Daisy because of a contract of sale between her and Mrs. Gidden.

GARDENING

Jack Beastall

Question: When should peaches be picked?

Answer: When the fruits are ripe and ready for picking.

Facetious? No. Just a statement of fact, although not exactly helpful unless you know how to tell when a fruit is ripe.

Today we are inclined to accept a marketed product as the standard of perfection, forgetting the fruits must be handled many times, often by machinery, and shipped many kilometres for distribution, therefore cannot be picked at the peak of perfection.

Our main purpose for growing fruits in the home garden is, or should be, to enjoy that fruit when it is at its best. In other words, to have what money cannot buy.

We often go out of our way to learn the secrets of machinery, such as how an automatic auto transmission on the car we drive is able to adjust to road and traffic conditions without human assistance, but we rarely give thought to the automatic mechanism which keeps leaves attached to a tree until their work is done, and then discards them.

An automatic mechanism holds fruits on a tree, regardless of their weight, until such time as the seeds within the fruit have fully developed, then releases them so the seed may reach the soil, germinate, and make new plants.

The mechanism itself consists of a layer of specialized plant cells within the stem that holds the fruit, often visible as a lump or thickening of the stem.

The cells are kept active by special hormones which the tree supplies as long as the seeds are developing naturally.

When no seeds are present, or development of the seed is arrested, the hormone supply is not needed and therefor is cut off, allowing the cells to dry up and the fruit to fall. This also happens when the seeds are fully developed and the fruits are what the gardener calls "ripe".

These cells form an abscission layer, abscission being defined as "cutting off; removal by surgery; sudden ending."

Going back to the question of when are fruits ready for picking, if the abscission layer has nearly dried out the fruit will separate from the plant as soon as it is touched, either by the gardener, a bird, or a gust of wind.

Trained fruit pickers on private estates understand this mechanism. Fruits are picked by placing the hand at the base and raising them to a horizontal position. When the fruit is ready to pick it will drop into the palm of the hand. If not it is left for a day or two to complete ripening.

This brings us back to our original answer; the time to pick is when the fruit is ripe and ready for picking.

It is amazing how few gardeners know when berries are ready for picking.

The same layer of cells operates to keep a berry attached to the plant. The lightest touch with the tumb and finger will release a ripe berry and allow it fall into the palm of the hand.

When force is needed to pull the berry free it is not ripe, nor has it reached its peak of sweetness and flavor.

Berries that are pulled off the plant are only fit for cooking, requiring a large amount of sugar that would not be necessary if they were allowed to remain on the plant another day or two to develop their natural sweetness.

New York

Stock prices, after falling in morning trading, showed signs of recovering today.

Gaining issues outnumbered losers by a slight 7-to-6 margin, two-thirds of the way through the trading session.

Trading was not as heavy as Monday when the market surged with an eight-point gain in the blue chip index. But it remained fairly active with turnover of 28.49 million shares.

Analysts have pointed to buying by institutional investors as the main force in a rally which began early last week.

The decline in early trading today was described normal profit-taking after recent price gains.

MGIC Investment tumbled 3⅜ to $32⅜ in active trading. The stock had been halted since Friday's announcement that merger talks with an unnamed company ended without agreement.

London

The London stock market fell moderately near the close of light trading today.
